TANKS CUT OFF NAZIS IN LIBYA; REDS BATTLE FOE NEAR MOSCOW; 'PHANTOMS' RAID FRENCH COAST

Where U. S. Guards Dutch Ore

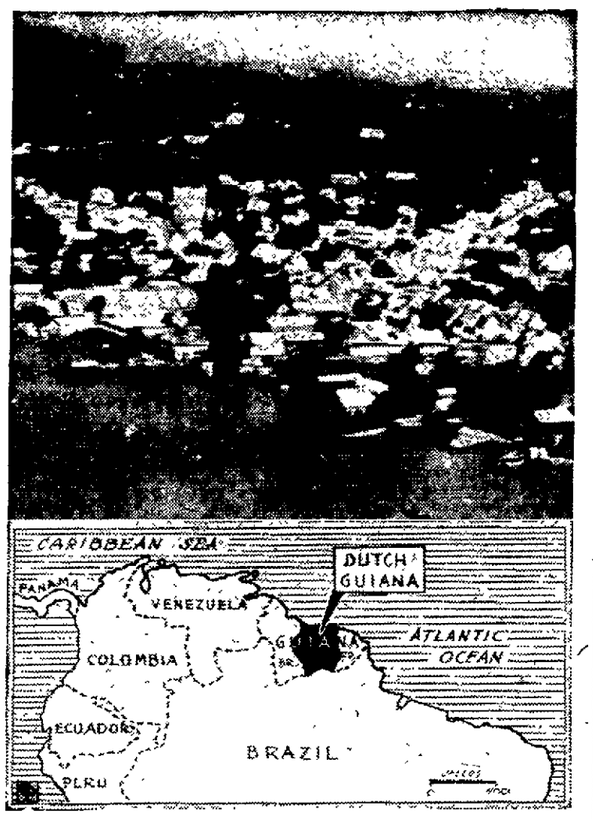

Photo at top shows the City of Surinam, capital of Dutch Guiana, (see map) which is now formally under the military protection of U. S. troops. President Roosevelt said, that the military occupation was undertaken primarily to protect the Guiana bauxite mines, which now supply approximately 60 per cent of the vital aluminum ore needed by the U. S.

COMMANDOS STAGE HIT AND RUN ATTACK

British Forces Garbed In Black Make Daring Assault on Normandy.

GERMANS ADMIT RAID

Organizer Says Unit Could Have Changed Course of War Year Ago.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Britain's commandos, tough, black uniformed "phantom" troops, made a daring hit and run raid on the Normandy coast Sunday night and early Monday morning, it was disclosed officially today.

The commandos, organized to reconnoiter German defenses and cause as much havoc and destruction as possible, got ashore, completed their mission and returned, the only casualty being a man who was shot in the arm by a machine gun bullet.

As the ministry of information was announcing the raid, Admiral Sir Roger J. B. Keyes said in the house of commons that the commandos were eager and ready to act a year ago when, he said, they might have altered the course of the war.

"The prime minister was as keen as I was to act vigorously in the face of hazards and achieve great results which, if the commandos had been allowed to carry them out, might have electrified the world and altered the whole course of the war," Keyes said.

Keyes organized the commandos, beginning with July 17, 1940, but had to retire under the age limit five weeks ago.

The latest raid by the shock troops was believed to have been the first under a new commander. He has been appointed since Admiral Keyes retired but has not been identified.

Keyes started training the men 15 months ago—after the fall of France. The training was a closely guarded secret and even war correspondents were not allowed to visit them. Later it was learned the commandos oper-

Senators In Approval of Troop Move

Link Sending of Forces to Dutch Guiana With Vichy Relations.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON— The dispatch of a protective force of United States troops to Dutch Guiana won much commendation in the senate today, and the general disposition was to link the move with the critical status of Franco-American relations.

Several senators, speaking of the Dutch colony's rich bauxite mines, said that President Roosevelt obviously intended to forestall any threat to this vital supply source which furnishes more than 60 per cent of the bauxite ore required by this country's rapidly expanding aluminum industry.

Although none claimed to have confidential information, some well-informed legislators thought that Mr. Roosevelt may have acted from concern lest Germany occupy Dakar, France's strategic base on the western hump of Africa, and then try later to move into French Guiana, which borders the Dutch colony in the northeast coast of South America.

Senator Hill (D-Ala), the majority whip, expressed the opinion the president sent armed forces to Dutch Guiana "because we know that there is a projected conference between Hitler and Petain regarding the French Colonial possessions, which include French Guiana."

Diplomatic quarters have received a number of reports of Nazi activity in French Guiana, and it is known that citizens of the Dutch Colony have been uneasy about conditions in the French penal colony ever since the fall of France. The cessation of French food shipments has worsened the plight of some 10,000 convicts there, and many of the regular guards have deserted. An easily forded river separates the two colonies, and until the recent arrival of Dutch reinforcements from England, only a few hundred men could be mustered in Dutch Guiana's defense.

Apparently neither the French colonial authorities nor the Vichy government were consulted regarding the United States decision to support the recent Dutch reinforcements with American troops, but the step had the approval of both the

Armored Battle Waning, German Army Crippled

British Continue African Advance As They Hurl Enemy Back 62 Miles In Big Counter-Offensive West Of Ukraine Industrial City.

(By Associated Press)

Masses of British and Axis tanks swirled in chaotic battle over the sands of North Africa today, and Russia's Red armies fought to stem a German onslaught within 50 miles of Moscow.

British front-line dispatches, claiming victory over the Germans in at least one sector of the Rezegh battle zone, 10 miles south of Tobruk, said the Nazis were gradually being cut off from their supplies by imperial columns driving westward along the Mediterranean coast.

Cairo reports said that the great three-day tank battle at Rezegh had begun to die down, as a result of heavy losses on both sides, but that British infantry reinforcements were pouring into the fighting from their bases east and south.

As pictured by the British, German Gen. Erwin Rommel's tank forces were badly crippled and there was no indication of fresh German troops being sent into action.

On the Ukraine front, Soviet dispatches reported that a powerful Russian counter-offensive west of Rostov-on-Don had hurled the Germans back 62 miles and that the invaders were rushing new troops to the threatened area.

Nazi losses were described as "enormous," with the 16th German tank division "almost completely smashed."

The German high command on Saturday had claimed the capture of Rostov, northern gateway to the Caucasus oil fields, but the Russians reported on Sunday that fierce tank and machine-gun battles were still raging in the city's streets.

Today's dispatches indicated that the Russians were making now a furious attempt to recapture Rostov after breasting the initial German drive beyond the strategic Don river port.

On the Libyan desert front, authoritative London quarters described the action in Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham's eight-day-old offensive as "very confused" and said "very hard" fighting continued.

From the Axis capitals, Berlin and Rome, came synchronized reports of British reverses.

German military quarters as-

FDR Tells Congress to Act on Strike-Curbing

Details of Legislation Left To Solons At Two-Hour Conference With Key Men of Both Parties In House.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt told congress to start writing its own ticket today on strike curbing legislation.

The chief executive conferred more than two hours last night with key house members—Republicans as well as Democrats—who reported that he appeared to favor suggestions for a cooling off period and compulsory arbitration when strike calls threaten defense production.

The scope of the legislation and details of the bill apparently were left strictly up to the lawmakers, although Mr. Roosevelt was said to have made it clear he thought it was time for congress to act.

House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts and Minority Leader Martin of the same state stood side by side when interviewed by reporters at the conclusion of the extraordinary White House meeting.

With nine other house members, Attorney General Biddle, Labor Secretary Perkins and her assistant, Daniel W. Tracy, they had gone over the whole knotty problem of defense strikes with the president, and exchanged individual views on how best to cope with the situation.

McCormack said it was "pretty generally agreed" that there should be a "waiting period called for by law" before a strike could be put into effect in a defense in-

Meanwhile, it was reliably reported that the Mansfield plant would soon receive another sizeable order. Officials of the company would not reveal what kind of articles the contract would call for nor the contract amount but indicated announcement would be made later this week.

'And Walls Came Tumbling', New Serial For N-J

Based on a theme as timely as today's headlines The News-Journal's new serial, "And the Walls Came Tumbling," by Joseph McCord, starts in tomorrow's issue.

The story has its setting in the sleepy little town of Jericho where nothing exciting has happened since General Lew Wallace's troops camped there after advancing to intercept General Jubal Early's raiders during the Civil war.

Government defense projects change all this when an alert young man, Chester Dennison, arrives to purchase a site for an aircraft factory. While looking for a suitable location he runs a nail in his foot and finds upon his entry at the doctor's office that romance has entered with him.

Carol Delaine, the doctor's assistant, is bored with the humdrum life in Jericho. She lives with her father, Andy Delaine, the town tailor and a witty conversationalist, and her Aunt Cassandra.

Young Dennison's appearance in Jericho and the plans for an aircraft factory wakes up not only the village but Carol's heart as well. But a somber note is sounded when Andy gets an option on the only suitable site and makes Dennison pay him a pretty penny.

CHARGES FINNS HAMPER U. S. AID

Stimson Says Action Against Mumansk Supply Lines Is 'Harmful To Interests.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson charged today that Finnish army co-operation with German troops along the northern front in Russia is helping Germany to concentrate its efforts in a way "harmful to the interests of the United States."

He referred to German attacks on the Murmansk-Moscow supply line over which the United States is supplying lend-lease aid to the Russians and over which British assistance has been moving.

In a statement which war department officials said was designed to answer numerous inquiries, Stimson said it was "regrettable that the Finnish army should allow this condition to continue."

"Regardless of the laudable ambition of the Finnish nation to recover ground lost to the Russians in the last war between these nations," Stimson said, "It is evident that the Finns are now being used by the Germans to further the German efforts to defeat the Russian forces in the Leningrad-Lake Onega theater."

The secretary declared that this

Work To Start On County's Wooden Bridge Today – If

Work on the new wooden bridge over Touby's Run on North Main street was to get under way today but there still was a big IF in the way.

A big steam crane and some other equipment has finally arrived in the city and it still has to be moved to the project scene.

Construction of the bridge has been delayed by first one thing and then another and yesterday's scheduled start was delayed by the unloading of the crane, shipped here by train from Newark.

Repairs to the railing and lights at the west side of the temporary wooden structure damaged yesterday morning when a car crashed into the barricade and barely missed a 10-foot drop into the stream kept county workers busy Monday.

This was the first accident reported at the bridge since the old stone structure collapsed two years ago and a temporary wooden span was erected.

The county will keep one side of the bridge open for traffic while the new structure is being built.

Scribbles Cause of Plane Crash on Ship's Side--Then Survives Crack-Up

Bucyrus Youth Suffers Only Sprain, Bruises In Flying Mishap.

BUCYRUS — After having a brush with death so close that he had given up hope of escape himself, a Bucyrus high school senior came out of an airplane crash last night with only a shoulder sprain and a few scratches.

Fred Keller, 17, who was so certain that he was taking his last airplane ride that when his light two-passenger plane went out of control he scribbled a note on the side of the plane explaining just what had happened.

He wrote the story of the crack-up in pencil, explaining briefly that a fire extinguisher had fallen from its rack and had become tangled in the plane's rudder cable, disabling it.

He wrote the message as the plane was on its way 1,000 feet down to earth.

As he wrote the plane went into a tail-spin at about 500 feet, and then crashed on the farm of Joseph Sabo, one mile east of Bucyrus.

Keller had previously turned off the ignition which probably prevented the plane from catching fire.

Stunned for a few moments, he pulled himself from the wreckage and walked to the Sabo farm home. He telephoned his father who came after him in an automobile.

Keller, an aviation enthusiast holds a student pilot's license. He took off yesterday afternoon in a plane owned by the Bucyrus Flying club of which he is a member.

It was about 5 p. m. when the fire extinguisher fell into the rudder cable and started him into the plunge which seemed to "certain death" to him but ended only with the shoulder sprain and bruises. He hopes to be back in school tomorrow.

Flees Without Paying For Gas, Loses Wild Auto Chase

When a colored motorist drove away from a filling station on U. S. route 30 near Mifflin yesterday afternoon without paying for 17 gallons of gasoline, Carl R. Johnson, the station proprietor, decided he would do something about it without calling officers.

Johnson and his son locked their station, got into their car, and gave chase. They had to drive 90 miles an hour a part of the time to overtake the fleeing motorist, but they crowded him to the curb in East Mansfield a few minutes later.

While one of them stood watch over him, the other called Sheriff Frank E. Robinson who took a 37-year-old Canton man into custody. The prisoner was turned over to Ashland county authorities who said charges would be filed against him. The filling station is just over the Ashland county line.

"I've had a couple of other motorists run away without paying for their gas, and I'm getting tired of it," Johnson told Sheriff Robinson.

Johnson said the usual trick is to have the tank filled with gas and then ask for a quart of oil. While the attendant goes into the station for a quart measure, the motorist drives away.

TANKS CUT OFF GERMANS FROM LIBYA SUPPLIES

Armored Battle In Africa Wanes, as Reds Battle 50 Miles From Capital.

serted Britain's desert steamroller was "jammed" and that Axis leadership had taken the initiative.

In Rome, Premier Mussolini's high command reported that Italian and German columns had wiped out two British armored brigades in two days and declared the Axis was liquidating a large part of imperial armored forces caught in pockets.

The Italians also denied British claims to the capture of Bardia, 10 miles west of the Egyptian frontier, and the high command asserted that "nothing has been changed in the investment of Tobruk fortress," 90 miles west of the border. New sallies from the town were declared to have been repulsed.

Cairo dispatches said the Tobruk garrison, under siege since last April 11, had slashed through Axis lines to a point within four miles of main British columns advancing from the south and east, and had captured over 2,000 prisoners, half of them Germans.

Admitting bloody losses on both sides, the Fascist high command reported:

"In the Bir El Gobi zone, at the end of the encircling maneuver begun on Nov. 23, the Ariete division and German armored divisions annihilated the 22nd British armored brigade.

"Further prisoners were captured and the ground was strewn with immobilized and burned British tanks, which are being mopped up."

British Middle East headquarters, virtually noncommittal on progress in the vast battle of annihilation, reported that reinforcements had been thrown into the fierce action raging around Rezegh, 10 miles south of Tobruk.

A British spokesman said it was "like a gigantic dogfight with enormous swirling masses of men and machines in the dust around Rezegh. . . . A very bitter battle, and both sides are putting everything into it."

A Cairo war bulletin said South African forces, heavily outnumbered, held off a powerful tank-led German assault in the Rezegh zone "until British armored forces put in a counter attack which eventually drove off the German tanks with heavy losses."

The communique said that New Zealand troops were continuing their advance toward Tobruk and that 119 Axis planes had been destroyed in the first six days of the drive to knock the Axis out of North Africa.

On the Russo-German war front, the Russians acknowledged that Field Marshal Gen. Fedor von Bock's armies knifing into the north flank of the 200-mile Moscow defense arc had reached a point within 50 miles of the capital at the Moscow-Leningrad railtown of Klin.

Hitler's field headquarters declared the invaders were even closer, claiming the fall of Solnetschnogorski, only 31 miles northwest of Moscow, on the rail line to Leningrad.

Soviet front-line dispatches said the Germans had thrown 600,000 troops into the northwest sector alone—indicating that perhaps as many as 1,500,000 or 2,000,000 Nazis now were hammering at Moscow's shortened defenses.

Except for the threat at Klin, however, the Russians reported their lines were holding strongly and that the Red armies of Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov were improving their positions in the sectors of Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, and Mozhaisk, 57 miles west of the capital.

The newspaper Pravda's correspondent said German pincer tactics in those two zones had failed after nine days of savage thrusts, but acknowledged that the Nazis had succeeded in pushing back Soviet lines in "exceedingly violent" clashes around Klin.

Soviet advices reaching London reflected confidence, however, declaring the Red army could hold on until the German offensive had exhausted itself.

On the southern (Ukraine) front, where the Germans claim to have driven far beyond Rostov-on-Don, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Red army forces had thrown the Germans back as much as 100 kilometers (about 62 miles) in a powerful counter-offensive.

In a side phase of the war, a "cardboard conference" of 13 nations conquered or dominated by Hitler's reich signed the Nazi-sponsored anti-comintern pact for a new five-year period.

British Tanks Fight On Moscow Front

KUIBYSHEV, U. S. S. R.—(U.P.)—British tanks have been in action on the Moscow front for the first time, it was disclosed today.

Dispatches from the front said that British equipment went into action as German forces attacking the city defended their northern salients and compelled Red army units to withdraw to more favorable defense lines.

The Soviet information bureau here said that the most critical sectors on the Moscow front remained near Klin, north of the city, and Tula, on the south.

Tojo Cites Duty to 'Smash Difficulties'

TOKYO—(INS)—Premier Hideki Tojo today proclaimed Japan's "glorious duty" to smash the difficulties facing the nation, while Tokyo newspapers fulminated once more against the United States and Soviet Russia.

Addressing the National Service association, Tojo declared the situation confronting Japan is "unprecedently grave" and added:

"It is the glorious duty imposed upon the Japanese to break through this difficult situation."

Lieut. Gen. Kisaburo, vice president of the association, declared in reply that the entire Japanese nation now is ready to "start to march at the word of command."

The newspaper Kokumin simultaneously renewed Japan's press attacks on the United States. It said that if America insists upon depriving Japan of fulfilment of Nippon's ideals, "there is absolutely no way for a compromise between the two countries."

Churchill Cautions On Peace Terms

LONDON —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill today cautioned a house of commons member who raised the question of peace terms "not to count your chickens before they are hatched."

He made his remark to Geoffrey L. Mander, Liberal, who had insisted that Churchill "make clear to the enemy" that any peace settlement must include return of machinery removed from occupied countries and reconstruction of destroyed property.

Five Republican congressmen from United States watched commons debate from distinguished strangers' gallery. They were Richard P. Gale and Melvin J. Maas of Minnesota, William S. Hill of Colorado, and W. Sterling Cole and Joseph Baldwin of New York.

"I am very pleased to note perfectly the free parliamentary discussions permitted in wartime," Baldwin said. "There is no conflict here between the war effort and the democratic process."

Netherlands government and of Brazil, which adjoins both the Dutch and French colonies.

Brazil manifested her approval by announcing the dispatch of a military mission to cooperate with Dutch and U. S. troops in guarding the bauxite mines and simultaneously served notice last night that she would not be neutral if any other American nation became involved in the war.

The joint action of the United States and Brazil, some diplomatic sources thought, might be calculated to remind Vichy of the Havana conference agreement after France's fall which provided for a Pan-American trusteeship of any European possession in the western hemisphere which might be threatened with a change of sovereignty or loss of autonmy because of war. It was believed that any complete Vichy surrender to Nazi collaboration would be interpreted as constituting such a threat.

There was another veiled reminder to Vichy in the publication of President Roosevelt's letter yesterday specifically authorizing lease-lend aid to the Free French forces. If France decides to cast her lot with the Axis in the coming conversations, it was pointed out, bases in Dutch Guiana could effectively support a Free French move on French Guiana.

Charge Attack on South America

BERLIN — (U.P.) — Berlin newspapers today charged that dispatch of United States troops to Dutch Guiana was "Roosevelt's first military attack against South America."

Announcement of the troop movement was accompanied by front-page editorials in afternoon papers.

"President Roosevelt, through this act of violence, has set foot on the South American continent. This, it should be noted, is his first military attack on South American territory.

The storm troop organ, Das Schwarze Korps, charged that Mr. Roosevelt had started "a chain of rapings" by sending United States troops to Iceland and Guiana.

The Berliner Lokalanzeiger termed the move "robbery in its most naked form." It said Mr. Roosevelt had "annexed" the Dutch colony for an indefinite period.

PLAN REMOVAL OF POWER LINES

O. P. S. Submits Proposal To City For Placing Cables Under Streets.

Plans for laying of electric cables under downtown streets to replace overhead electrical wiring now in use were submitted to City Engineer W. C. Statler today by the Ohio Public Service company.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said that the utility planned to place underground cables on at least five of the city's downtown streets.

Blueprints filed with Statler show that the new lines would be placed under North Park, East Third and East Fourth streets between Diamond and Main streets and also on Diamond and Main streets between North Park and Fourth streets.

Crafton said that Ohio Public Service workers would dig up narrow trenches in the street to lay the cables and that the company would assume the cost of replacing the broken pavement.

Four foot deep trenches measuring about a foot across would be needed to run the cables from block to block. Telephone poles used by the company for their lines would be left standing until the city makes arrangements for removing the wires of the police and fire signal system. Council has appropriated funds to allow City Electrician Ernest Adams to have the lines laid beneath the pavement.

Crafton said that he had not been informed when the work would start. Joy Herbert, district manager of the Ohio Public Service company, could not be reached and other company officials were unable to supply additional information.

ations the company regularly carries on.

The Air Corps order was given by the material division of the Air Corps at Wright Field, Dayton. It is one of a series of defense contracts received by the Mansfield plant, which has been seeking defense work to provide employment for employes usually working on electrical household appliances.

Priority curtailments on appliance manufacturing and restrictions on needed metals has forced the company to furlough more than 1,000 employes since September.

In Washington today the war department announced approval of the formal contract the Mansfield plant has received for the production of $2,336,450 worth of 37 millimeter tank-piercing shells. The company had received an informal contract for the shell production late last month.

Hillier said today that work on the shells would be started soon after the first of the year. He reported that production on a $3,173,975 order for binoculars for the U. S. Army will start in "a few months."

The defense products sales manager said that although the order for the film processing trays is not for a large amount, it will enable the plant to train workers and to tool the plant for additional work of the same type.

'PHANTOMS' HIT FRENCH COAST IN NIGHT RAID

ated with tommy guns, grenades, knives, sticks and dynamite. They always operate under the cover of night.

The commandos black their faces to make them match their weird, black battle dress.

The daring hit and run raid made by the commandos Sunday night was the first against the continent to have been acknowledged officially. But it has been known that the group acted as spearheads in British blows against the Norwegian Lofoten Islands, Spitzbergen and Bardia.

First reports of the raid made by the commandos Sunday night did not indicate that it was on any scale comparable with the assaults on Bardia, Spitzbergen and the Lofoten Islands. But the German high command mentioned it in today's communique issued from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters. The Germans, however, said the raid had been repulsed and that heavy losses had been inflicted on the British.

Keyes attacked the "brass hats of Whitehall" for "frustrating every worthwhile offensive action I have ever tried to make."

Keyes said that the service committees and subcommittees which have sprung up since the start of the war have become almost the dictators of military policy "instead of the servants, as they should be, of those who bear all responsibilities."

He said the service committees and subcommittees "concentrated on the difficulties and dangers of every amphibious enterprise which I suggested."

"They have hitherto succeeded in thwarting or delaying execution until we either have been forestalled or actions have been taken too late for success," he said.

"Until the staff system is thoroughly overhauled we will always be too late for everything we undertake."

There was no suggestion that the latest raid was big enough to be connected with any invasion hopes.

After his speech in commons Keyes declind to amplify his assertion that a year ago the commandos might have "electrified the world."

It is known that the commandos originally were organized to form the spearhead of a full scale invasion. But they have been used for quick thrusts at night. That has been admitted as one of the reasons for the secrecy which surrounds all of their activity.

In view of widespread sabotage on the coast of occupied areas, it was considered possible the British authorities do not desire to give the Germans any clues as to whether particular train derailments, factory explosions and other sabotage was caused by local inhabitants or the commandos.

NEW LONDON — Plans are nearing completion for the meeting of the nineteenth Odd Fellow district, to be held in I. O. O. F. temple at Sandusky Thursday and which will be featured by a visit from the grand master of Ohio, John A. Herbert, of Cincinnati.

In addition to Herbert, William Beibersheimer, grand lodge director of publicity, of Toledo, will be a guest, and the evening's program will be rounded out with musical features of various kinds.

Invitations have been sent out to district representatives of surrounding communities, and present indications are that a number of them plan to attend.

dustry, and that "the president should have the power, in the final analysis, to order arbitration."

Some of the other conferees said it was not clear to them whether the president favored a simple mandate to two labor disputants to sit down together or the further step of compelling them to accept in advance the decision of an arbitration board.

Speaker Rayburn announced yesterday that the long discussed labor issue would be brought before the house immediately upon disposition of the pending price control bill. That, he said, would mean early next week.

Chairman Norton (D., N. J.) of the house labor committee, one of the group which went to the White House, called a meeting of the committee today determined, she said, to get "some kind of a bill" ready by the week-end.

On the other side of the capitol, a senate judiciary sub-committee called James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the navy, to give his views on a bill by Senator Connally (D., Tex.) to permit the government to take over and operate defense plants when production is halted by labor trouble.

situation was "not only inimical to the final interests of Finland, but enables Germany to concentrate her efforts on a line harmful to the interests of the United States."

Simultaneously, the war department released a statement by Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, deputy lend-lease administrator and member of the recent U. S. mission to Moscow, who declared it was essential to our national policy that the U. S. get supplies in quantity to the Russian forces, "and it now appears that Finland is being forced to act in such a way as to interfere with the delivery of these supplies."

CHAPTER XXXI

Men jumped up waving hats and shouting. College girls shrieked and yelled. Press photographers, who had been taking their pictures, tore out down the aisle toward Phoenix, and their departure seemed to launch an impromptu parade.

All in a moment the 10,000-odd people were a milling, laughing, cheering throng making so much noise that it reverberated off the cliffs of Shadow Canyon and quite engulfed any further efforts at orderly proceedings here. And the scheduled election of fiesta queen? That little matter was wholly forgotten! People had come to their senses here. Dr. Palmer, the University president, first had shamed them, and then a romance had reached its climax right before their eyes.

Outside the exit where Ken carried Polly, he paused long enough to kiss her once.

"No one is looking, sweetheart!" he murmured, squeezing her close. "For this moment we are alone—you and I—" he kissed her a second time.

"Not quite, Ken," she managed. "If you will look down there. If you will....only....look!"

Down the slope not fifty yards from them, Ward McMurray was holding Joy Boone close. Or, perhaps it was the other way round. In any event she was sobbing happily while Ward held her and patted her.

"It's all Joy needed!" Polly whispered. "Something to cure her restlessness. Some one to really love her, and for her to love. Oh Ken, and once I was afraid that—"

She could talk no more, for his lips held hers yet again.

On the evening of Armistice day, the opening of La Fiesta del Sol, more people were in Phoenix, Ariz., than had ever been there before in the city's history.

You can't tell 10,000 people a thing and expect to keep it a secret! News of what had occurred in the Frontier U. amphitheater had traveled fast. The papers themselves had made discreet but thorough coverage, which was soon duplicated by the state's three radio chains But beyond all that was the incomparable word-of-mouth proclamation which permeated to every county and hamlet of the state.

As a result many thousands of men, women and children were here tonight in Spanish costume. Hotel accommodations had long since been exhausted, but no matter; sleep would be negligible anyway.

"They're paying outrageous prices to get in the grand ballroom!" someone said, truthfully. "Tickets were only three dollars each originally, but scalpers want twenty-five now."

Every ticket was sold by the time the Fiesta parade started. From a vacant field down in Mexican town where the forty or more flower floats had gathered, the procession moved on Jefferson street thence onto Central avenue and northward. Everywhere great Spanish shawls and colored streamers were draped over the streets, and countless millions of electric lights had been festooned. In the parade were fifteen orchestras, most of them string bands playing the soft, seductive music of old Mexico or inviting the populace to join in Sonoran love songs. Impromptu music along the sidewalks gave rise to impromptu dancing. American business men who were normally quite dignified had laid aside their severe fronts tonight! They had become caballeros instead. The Dons club, co-sponsors of the Fiesta, rode fifteen milk white horses heading the parade. College girls, high school girls, business girls and women from every other walk of life, had been costumed this day as senoritas. Phoenix was a city gone frenziedly into the spirit of play.

Just behind the Dons in the parade was a long float of fragrant roses and on a white throne in the middle of it sat a girl in a golden costume. Thirty Frontier U. girls walked beside it as attendants.

People said she was the most beautiful queen the fiesta had ever known.

When the parade was over, this float moved on through a special opening into the great Civic auditorium at McDowell road. When steps were added to it inside, it became then an altar. And while a throng of people looked in on hushed rapture, an aisle was formed and an orchestra began playing the Wedding March from Lohengrin.

Ten little flower girls came first down that long aisle. They were dainty muchachitas, children five to eight years old costumed in white and gold from Mexico. And then, without further ceremony—

"Look!" one excited spectator whispered. "That's Bettina Carlson, with Dr. Palmer himself; And then his son Ken with Polly! And poor Ward McMurray has to walk alone!"

Behind those five moving slowly and with rapt gaze, came the two ministers who were to conduct the sacred ceremonies here. Only sound, beyond the music, was the soft rustle of dresses and the quiet sobbing of women who could not quite contain themselves. All the audience was standing.

When the group walked sedately up to the float that was now a platform, Ward McMurray moved in stately dignity and assisted Joy from her queen's throne. She trembled just a little and whispered, "Oh Ward! Oh Ward, my darling!"

Polly, near to her then also, squeezed her hand, for mutual confidence. In a moment the couples were together, backs to the audience, listening to the prayer and the exhortation by the Rev. Rollo C. La Pryor.

In fifteen minutes the three wedding ceremonies had been performed. Dr. and Mrs. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. McMurray, then came down to the main floor to dance one number officially opening the Fiesta ball, before fleeing to waiting airplanes.

No one of the three couples would tell the others what place had been chosen for honeymoon!

The Phoenix morning newspaper next day carried everything in its Fiesta Special Edition. But there was one news article deemed sufficiently important to merit separate treatment. Its front page headline read:

"STUDENT ADDS $5,000,000 TO UNIVERSITY FUND."

The sub-heading under the larger banner line added: "Endowment More Than Doubled by Wealthy Eastern Girl on Eve of Wedding; College Expansion Program to Be Announced After President's Return."

Advertising Firm Here Praised For Catalogue Design

The Morgan Advertising company of Mansfield recently received special mention from Printers' Ink, national printing and advertising magazine, for its streamlined treatment in the designing of a catalogue for a Columbus manufacturer.

The magazine designated a Morgan catalogue, prepared for the International Derrick and Equipment division of the International-Stacy corporation of Columbus, as being "specially meritorious."

The Morgan company has transformed the catalogue, which is usually a drab affair carrying statistical data and limited descriptive matter, into a highly improv- article with a gaily lithographed cover.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Although admitting that his "dramatic talent is singularly undeveloped," nevertheless, Dr. George N. His appearance, in a green frock coat, will be in the production of the Hunter College Alumnae Players.

FARMERS HERE GIVEN $125,459

Receive That Amount In AAA Payments In 1940; More Checks Due Soon.

Richland county farmers collected a $125,459 share of Ohio's $11,571,902 in AAA farm program funds last year, the largest amount ever paid to county farmers, according to figures just released by the department of agriculture.

Soil conservation and parity payments to county farmers two years ago amounted to less than $100,000, and Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, said this year's payments probably would be less than the 1940 total.

The county's share of federal crop money last year was about average for the state. Some of the richest farm counties received as much as $250,000 while payments to farmers in the poorer ones ranged downward to less than $50,000.

Taylor said checks for participation in this year's program should begin arriving in about three weeks. Applications covering 600 county farms have just arrived from Columbus and must be signed by the participating farmers and returned before the first checks are prepared.

After the applications are signed and sent to Columbus it usually is a week or 10 days before the checks are ready. They will be sent to the county AAA office and distributed to farmers.

DYES PLENTIFUL

GENEVA, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Analine dyes, used on bacteria to make them more visible under microscopes, have been developed to a point where any emergency can be met, according to Dr. H. J. Conn of the state experiment station. Dr. Conn said the worker in American biological laboratories will not face the shortage of dyes as he did in the World war.

British Offensive In Africa

WHILE the new British offensive in Africa may have no direct bearing on the outcome of the war against the Axis powers, relief of the Tobruk garrison, which had been under siege for seven months, and successful engagement of German and Italian forces in the Libyan area, must be considered an essential part of the work to be done.

The present British drive, if it turns out as well as reports indicate is likely, will have an enormously heartening effect on nations and individuals opposed to Hitlerism, and the try-out of United States tanks and planes in Libya has given an excellent idea of the extent to which this country can serve as "the arsenal of democracy," once the task has been entered upon in real earnest.

While Russia continues as the principal theater of big war operations, the Libyan move may prove more helpful than appears on the surface, as Hitler is being forced to rush more support to his African armies while needing full strength for his widespread Russian campaign and in policing occupied territory. This is a war of vast distances and intricate strategy and history may credit this mid-November period as marking its turning point.

The African campaign, apparently planned with great care, may be effective in keeping this vast territory out of Hitler's hands, thereby easing the Mediterranean situation. Complete success of Great Britain in the present offensive would free Dakar, and western Africa in general, from threat of Nazi control, thus making the Atlantic much safer for transport of war materials from the United States.

Whatever the immediate results may be in the Russian and African fighting, the urgent need of coming weeks and months will be for a steadily increasing flow of munitions and supplies from this country to England and Russia—a task to which America is pledged, and which must be carried on until military defeat of the Axis powers is accomplished.

Science Thrives On Freedom

THE CLOSE relationship between scientific progress and the advancement of human freedom was recently emphasized by James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard university.

"Since the 15th Century," said Dr. Conant, "three major developments in human society have gone hand in hand—the rise of modern capitalism, the development of science, and the evolution of free institutions. Without science neither a business civilization nor the social philosophy of liberalism could have come to pass. And, conversely, without liberalism, science could not have blossomed and endured. . . . Three paths of development—political freedom, free enterprise, science—run parallel. . . . If we value a continuation of scientific advance, I do not see how we can fail to be concerned for the preservation of both free initiative and free democratic institutions. . . .

"Dreams of new adventures and new conquest of the material universe can find their realization only in the labor of free men."

It is not by chance that science has reached its greatest flower in the democratic world. That is true in all fields of scientific endeavor—chemistry, medicine, physics, astronomy, and the rest. It is not by chance that the greatest scientists of the Old World have fled the dictator countries, whenever possible, and have come to the New World. True science cannot flourish under regimentation. True science cannot long endure under totalitarian rule.

North Main Street Bridge Hazard

THE ACCIDENT that befell a Columbus motorist yesterday, just after entering Mansfield by way of North Main street, was one of those unfortunate occurrences that probably classifies as "avoidable," yet reflects on the city that permits such a hazard to exist unnecessarily long.

The washout of an old bridge over Touby's Run, on this much-traveled state highway, occurred about two and a half years ago, since which the thoroughfare has been bottle-necked by a barricade that left only the east half of the bridge open to traffic.

Under business-like handling a new bridge could have been erected and put in use within a couple of months after collapse of the old one, but one delay followed another—and politics took such a prominent place in the picture, that, at the end of two and a half years, the work of replacement is about to get under way . . . if the weather continues favorable and nothing happens to prevent.

And it's to be a WOODEN bridge, the county commissioners have decided—and stuck to—despite protests by council, city officials, and many citizens, who feel that a heavily traveled highway inside Mansfield corporation is entitled to as modern bridge construction as has been provided on a number of Richland county's rural roads.

Seventy Tons of Flying Weight

EVEN the Wright brothers, in their triumph at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903, and their belief in the possibilities of aviation, probably never dreamed of a flying machine like the army's giant B-19. The latest test flight completed by this new creation took it into the air with a gross weight of 70 tons. The empty plane weighs 41 tons. It went up the other day with 13 tons of dummy bombs and the rest of the load in fuel, military equipment and crew members. This, it is said, is the biggest load, military or commercial, ever lifted.

The test field from which the air monster took off and on which it later came to a beautiful landing, has a 6,000-foot runway, but the plane left the ground within a few seconds and used only 3,500 feet of the available space.

Airplanes of this type today are thought of chiefly as weapons of war but one of these days they will come into use for expansion of peaceful trade and travel.

Out in Texas a 25-year-old divinity student has taken a 70-year-old missionary as his bride and says the marriage was "made in heaven"—thus clearing up a point that might otherwise be confusing.

Word comes that a man named Damrong is among the leading statesmen of Thailand—not to be confused with any senator of whom the name may be remindful.

Quite naturally attention is being called to the fact that the new watchdog of the treasury is a Byrd.

Goebbels at least intimates that the Nazis CAN lose—but Lindbergh has shown no such weakness.

YOO—HOO! ADOLF!

Predict Million American Pilots

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Although much has been written about the training of army and navy pilots, few persons realize the enormity of the growth in civilian flying.

The other day, I heard a reasonably conservative aviation association official estimate that within the next few years one out of every 100 persons certainly—possibly one out of every 50—in the United States would hold a pilot's license of some kind.

THAT would mean a considerable acceleration in the rate at which the country now is turning out civilian pilots (about 100,000 a year), but when everything is considered, it is not an impossibility. For instance:

1 Under the inspiration and guidance of the National Aeronautic Association, the number of model airplane builders in the U. S. has crept up to 2,000,000. These youngsters learn the elements of aerodynamics and plane construction. Although youthful hobbies can't always be taken as an indication that a youngster will choose a profession in that direction, aviation is different in that the rewards which it holds out as a profession are likely to appeal to the young man or woman as much as model building did to the juvenile.

2 The Civilian Pilot Training Program has come of age. Thousands of youngsters every month are rolling out of the cockpits in hundreds of college and contract schools to earn wings for their solos and start the long trek through the airways toward becoming aces of private, commercial and wartime aviation. The army and navy has recognized the value of this program and now is giving credit for flying time when graduates enroll in the armed services.

As an example of what this program is accomplishing, I want to pass on a report from little Doane college of Crete, Neb., which I saw the other day. Out of 40 graduates of the elementary CPTP course there in the last year and a half, six are in the army aviation corps; another six in the navy; three more are awaiting call; two are taking advanced training to become flight instructors; six others have completed secondary flight training in the CPTP course. Out of 20 CPTP students there now, 12 have applied for the advanced course which opens in January. Multiply Doane by thousands and you have a picture of what is going on all over young America today.

3 The Civil Air Patrol, although held up for months in the office of civilian defense, will get the "take-off" sign any minute now and add a patriotic stimulus to civilian flying that will give not only women flyers but men who are unfitted for actual military service an opportunity to spread their wings for national defense.

4 Parachute jumping and stunt flying—both formerly frowned upon for civilians and in some sections even outlawed—are having a big revival.

5 The discovery by the army and navy that the air flivver, or "putt-putt," is of vital importance in organization of a modern war machine. Some experts on war maneuvers this summer are predicting that the part these little air "jeeps" played in messenger, taxi and observation service will result eventually in all the field services having their own "grasshopper squadrons." That means the "air flivver," at one time believed threatened with extinction by priorities, will have just as much opportunity as the fighter, bomber and scout plane to develop under the existing program.

BACK of it all, say the aviation experts, is the certainty that come peace and quieter times, civilian America will be the most air conscious country in the world.

As Gill Robb Wilson, president of NAA, put it recently: "Combat aircraft moving at 400 miles per hour 35,000 feet above the earth are the couriers of tomorrow's commerce. Bombers carrying a load of 20 tons a third of the way around the earth without refueling are the forerunners of cargo and passenger ships of post-war transportation."

And he might have added that the "grasshopper squadrons" now being formed are the flivvers that will clutter peacetime skyways.

Health And Diet

—By DR. CLENDENING

G. K. C.:—"Is buttermilk a good substitute for whole milk? If one were to drink at least two glasses of buttermilk each day, but never drank any whole milk, would he be getting the important things the whole milk gave him?"

Answer: Buttermilk contains on the average, 3 per cent protein, one-half of one per cent fat and 4 per cent carbohydrate. It is therefore the same as whole milk except for fat, of which whole milk contains 4 per cent. It contains the essential vitamins except D. On account of its low fat content, it is a good substitute for milk in a reducing diet.

B. L. G.: "Every day for eight months now I have been troubled by a spot of something like a piece of soot, floating in front of my eye. My vision is clear except for this. Will you please tell me the cause of this and what should be done about it?"

Answer: These spots are not of any consequence. They are probably due to a collection of cells or mucous in the humour of the eye. They indicate no serious eye disease.

D. D.: "What are some of the best exercises for the lungs? Will holding the breath for long times strengthen the lungs? Does a large chest indicate strong lungs? Will long distance running harm the lungs?"

Answer: No exercises, including holding the breath, strengthen the lungs themselves or increase their capacity. Everyone has more than enough lung tissue for his body size. What you mean, I think, is the physiological quality called wind, not lungs. This is strengthened only by increasing the work capacity of the heart, which long distance running will do.

A. S. D.: "Is there any connection between the thyroid gland and the teeth? I have been taking thyroid extract and my teeth have decayed rapidly. I wonder if this is coincidental or a result of taking the extract.

Answer: Coincidental. Thyroid should build up the teeth if anything.

Congressional Friends of Labor Favor Crackdown on John Lewis

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—If John L. Lewis has any illusions on what is in store for him on Capitol Hill, he should have been present when the house labor committee met behind closed doors to consider legislation to put an end to stoppages in defense industries.

Composed of congressmen with strong labor leanings, this committee long has been the miner fuehrer's private rooting section. But there were few signs of such devotion the other day.

Member after member condemned Lewis in scathing terms. "Defying the government," "playing into Hitler's hands, and "undoing labor's gains" were some of the bitter remarks.

One of the most significant things about the explosion was that it was led by one of labor's staunchest supporters in congress—able, liberal Representative Bob Ramspeck of Georgia. He voiced his vigorous views after Chairman Mary Norton had explained her bill to revamp the National Defense Mediation board into an agency with statutory powers.

Mrs. Norton contended that her measure would prevent future strikes in defense industries without sacrificing any of the rights won by labor under the New Deal.

"In my opinion," said Ramspeck, "your bill doesn't answer the purpose at all. It improves the personnel of the board and gives it some additional authority. But it won't prevent strikes any more than the present machinery does.

"Our problem is to deal with labor leaders who put their own interests ahead of the defense program. I have always been a loyal friend and supporter of labor, but the time has come when congress must do something to stop a man like Lewis. This committee has got to decide whether America is to be run by the government or John L. Lewis."

Ramspeck vigorously advocated that the bill should include a provision requiring a secret ballot of all union members before a strike can be ordered. "That's the democratic method," he held.

The only dissenting voice in the anti-Lewis chorus was Representative Augustine B. Kelley of Pennsylvania, a close friend of Lewis. Kelley denied that Lewis was a "dictator" and contended that his union was a democratic organization.

"I question whether the secret ballot would be a good thing," he said. "It might cause more strikes. District mine leaders might lose control of their members and we would have a lot of wildcat strikes."

"I thought you said the United Miners was a democratic organization?" broke in Ramspeck.

Kelley dropped the argument.

In Their Hair.

SECRETARY Henry Morgenthau is a hardworking, conscientious and well-intentioned public servant. But right now he is very much in the hair of administration leaders.

They hold a list of grievances against him that makes them sputter when they think of them and him. His administration colleagues fervently wish he would pipe down and stop sounding off so disconcertingly.

One grievance held against Morgenthau is in regard to the plan to broaden the social security program to include a number of groups not now covered, such as domestic help, seamen and farm labor, and to increase old-age pensions. The president favors this; the Social Security board, which drafted the plan, is chafing to get action started on Capitol Hill.

But for three weeks a special message to congress for this purpose has been gathering dust on Roosevelt's desk because Morgenthau stuck his oar into the matter.

When announced, the plan was fanfared as a further move to extend the benefits of the social security system. The pigeonholed message makes a big point about this. Increased social security taxes were soft-pedalled; the big emphasis was on benefits.

But Morgenthau, without consulting either the White House or the Social Security board, upset this carefully planned applecart by proclaiming that he favored the plan as an anti-inflation measure. Increased taxes would be necessary to finance the additional outlays and these new taxes, Morgenthau explained cheerfully, would "mop up" excess fund in the pockets of taxpayers and thus aid in preventing inflation.

The unfavorable reaction to this outburst was deafening. The situation became so bad that the president was strongly advised to hold up his message until the uproar had subsided and a new start could be made on the plan.

Second Faux Pas.

THIS faux pas, however, apparently had no effect on Morgenthau. While administration politicos were still raging over it, the secretary of treasury again opened his mouth and stuck his foot in it.

This time he barged into the controversy over slashing non-defense expenditures, one of the hottest issues in Washington.

The Budget Bureau has been quietly working on an economy plan under which around $450,000,000 would be impounded from the funds of WPA, NYA, CCC, and a number of other agencies. But again, without consulting anyone, Morgenthau leaped into the fray with another anti-inflation statement that made a monkey of the Budget Bureau's cuts.

Morgenthau's latest emanation was his scheme to deduct a 15 per cent tax from salaries beginning Jan. 1, thus in effect imposing a double income tax. This time the boys on Capitol Hill had fainting fits.

Facing hot election fights next year, the politicos considered Morgenthau's proposal pure poison. They envisioned hordes of taxpayers rising up in rage and mowing them down in droves.

Furiously, the boys demanded of administration leaders that Morgenthau be silenced once and for all. They also served notice that his scheme would pass only "over their dead bodies."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I wish I knew who threw the first pie. I've often wondered what he looked like, and where he came from. I'd like to know what manner of man he was, and whether it was written into the script or just an impromptu hunch. I'd lke to know what play it was, and what kind of pie, custard or apple.

Somehow, I have the notion he was a big fellow, big and easy going, with a lock of loose hair over his forehead and an easy smile, a slow smile that didn't tell much except that it belonged to a fellow who could take things in stride, who wasn't too sensitive, who could dish it out as well as take it.

Of all the lost heroes of the theater who have won anonymous fame, he is the most unsung. No one ever writes about him, or wonders who he was, or pays him homage. If they have, I have not found where.

AND yet, fortunes have been founded on the throwing pie—that simple act of absurdum before which no sense of dignity can survive. There is something so final about a creamy custard catching a villain full in the face. You can ward off a wisecrack, or a blow. You can come back from a long count. But when a piece of ripe pastry plasters your kisser, blinding you and dripping in long stringy gobs on your coatfront, what can you do?

As for the act itself—we know it isn't new. It was one of Mack Sennett's springboards to fame. It meant fat salary dividends to Laurel and Hardy. Eddie Cantor knows it. . . . Ed Wynn loves it . . . It was old when America was born. It has been used in English beer halls and worn ragged in Yankee burlesque jungles. . . . Without it vaudeville could not have been what it was. . . . That's why it is surprising to find it bobbing up wtih each new season, in the best of company, justifying itself more than ever.

If you are inclined to the view that pie-throwing has outlived its virtues, I invite you to go down to the Imperial and have a look at Danny Kaye in "Let's Face It," which to this reporter's mind is the funniest item since "Good News."

A GAWDY sequence in this musical farce is written around pie. The scene takes place at an army camp. Let me set it for you briefly: Kaye and two pals agree to meet after taps to plot a piece of mischief. They rendezvous before a group of statues of three soldiers in heroic mood. Just then the captain and Danny's girl stroll into view, and the panic-stricken soldiers freeze into postures identical with the statues: The pantomime that goes on behind the captain and the girl is hilarious. . . . Every time the captain says something nice to the girl, Danny lunges for him, and the three then freeze into new postures.

Finally, the girl says, "Captain, how do you stay in such marvelous condition?"

"I take exercise," he says, "and I don't touch sweets. Why, I haven't had a piece of pie in my mouth in years." . . .

That's when it happens. . . . The word pie isn't out of his mouth before his whole countenance is buried under an avalanche of custard. . . .

Funny? Without exception, everybody at the Imperial thinks it is. They have a right to think that way. They pay $4.40 to get in. As nobody yet has demanded his money back, it must be funny.

A Farmer's Diary

Hybrid Experiment

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I SAW a 20-acre field of corn south of here that had not been cut. The north half was down so flat it looked as if a roller had gone over it. Only occasionally a stalk stood up. But on the southern part the fallen stalks were as few as they were left standing on the northern side.

Something was wrong. The ears of grain seemed as long and as well formed on one side as the other. I stopped and walked along the peculiar dividing line. I noticed, too, that at least half the heavy fodder was blown down from the very root, the rest was broken off one to three feet above ground. All of the corn was yellow, 16 rows to the ear—the deep grains looked identical. But much of the corn on the ground was damp and swollen from recent rain, while that left standing was brittle and shelled off easily.

I lifted a broken stalk out of the ground with ease but when I tried to pull up one in a standing row I could hardly do it with both hands, and when I set it on the surface the root system was amazing in depth and circumference.

Sitting in my car, I wondered again what could have happened to the north side of that field. About the only way the farmer could get it harvested with any profit, I mused, would be to turn hogs in and then the danger from musty corn might be too great. I shook my head.

Just then a farmer came by on a hay rigging. He stopped and wondered if he could do anything to help me. "My car will go," I told him, "But I wish you'd tell me what happened to the north half of this man's cornfield."

"Aw shucks—that's easy. That's the half that ain't hybrid! One of my neighbors paid $6 a bushel for hybrid seed and tried to get me to plant some. I live on a rented farm, and I couldn't see payin' that price. Besides I had good seed corn I'd raised myself. So finally, he gave me enough to plant half the field for half price, if I'd give it a fair trial. So I planted half the field to each kind. All summer I had the laugh on him, for there didn't look to be no difference. Then that big wind came along, and you see what's happened. That hybrid's great stuff! Farmers has went modern. Fellows that farm just like their grandpap did can't do well, no more. If you haven't planted hybrid corn, try it next year. The fellow I told you about—he'll sell you the seed."

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

In Absentia

The memory of those beloved,
What would our lives be, friend,
Unless we turned the pages back
Some hours with them to spend?

A vision of a dear, loved face
How welcome that can be
In some bleak moment when the heart
Needs help and sympathy.

Loved faces, these and words recalled,
Bring solace any day;
Are patent in themselves to calm
Fear, grief or dire dismay.

SET UP PLAN TO SIGN WORKERS IN NYA CLASSES

Officials In Mifflin Resident Center To Have Interview Day In Mansfield.

NYA officials in the Mansfield area have set up a special registration program to aid workers furloughed from their regular work because of priorities restrictions to learn a defense skill which will fit them for full time employment in defense industries.

Unemployed youths between the ages of 18 and 25 are eligible to sign up for the defense training program and may confer with a NYA representative every Monday at the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office on North Diamon street.

Fourteen young men furloughed from the Westinghouse plant have already signed up for NYA training at the Charles Mill Resident center, located six and a half miles east of the city, near Mifflin.

Offered in the defense courses is machine shop work, welding and sheet metal work. Training is for six hours a day, four hours being devoted to actual work on a production basis, and two hours in related training, such as blueprint reading, mathematics and the use of various measuring instruments.

Men who have been working up to the recent layoff and who are eligible for unemployment compensation will continue to get their benefits. C. E. Handley, district manager of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, announced that the trainees are paid $25 monthly by the federal government to help pay expenses and that $4.62 is substracted from the regular weekly benefit claim for 18 weeks.

Each trainee is registered at the Ohio State Employment office and after successful completion of the training course, this office will try to place him in full time defense industries.

Applicants may call at the Ohio State Unemployment office on Mondays to confer with NYA agents or at other times to talk with Handley. Further information may be obtained at the Charles Mill resident center.

165 Draftees From City and County Go To Columbus In Next Two Days.

With 165 more Richland county registrants due to go to Columbus for physical examinations today and tomorrow, Board 2 which sent the first group from the county under the new one-examination plan last week learned today that 41 of the 66 men examined last Friday were approved and seven more may get the doctors' approval.

The percentage of approvals was the highest of any group of Richland county registrants examined in recent weeks. Bryan Styert, clerk of Board 2, said the large group was handled without trouble and the new system apparently is an improvement over the former plan under which prospective selectees were required to take two examinations, one in Mansfield and the other in Columbus.

Board 1 was to send 89 men to the Fort Hayes induction station in Columbus today for physical examinations and Board 3 will follow with 76 more on Wednesday.

The Richland county boards have have only one man on call for induction so the registrants examined last week and those scheduled to go to Columbus tomorrow and Wednesday will remain on their jobs until they are called.

Richland Deputy Tries Again To Return Defendant

Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman went to Ft. Wayne, Ind., today in a second attempt to obtain the release of Owen Timmons, wanted in Richland county on a grand jury indictment for non-support.

Timmons was arrested in Ft. Wayne about two weeks ago on the Richland county warrant, but by the time Freeman had gone to Indianapolis and received the necessary extradition credentials, a Ft. Wayne judge had reduced Timmons' bond from $1,000 to $100 and Timmons was released.

After Freeman returned to Mansfield empty-handed, he called the Indiana attorney general and received a promise that the case would be re-heard today in Ft. Wayne and suggested that Freeman be there to present his story.

Timmons was indicted secretly by the Richland county grand jury because county authorities were unable to locate him before the jury session several weeks ago. Ft. Wayne police told Freeman that Timmons left his job there last week when he was released under $100 bond.

Owners of lowest-priced cars have learned it's wise to invest a little more and get a Pontiac

GENERAL MOTORS' MASTERPIECE
THE FINE CAR WITH THE LOW PRICE

NO WONDER OWNERS of lowest-priced cars in all parts of the country are again switching to Pontiac this year.

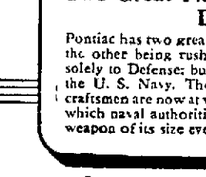
They've learned that Pontiac not only costs no more to own and operate, but also they're paying no more in the long run. They're simply investing a little more because they've found Pontiac owners get the few extra dollars they pay back again at trade-in time—thanks to Pontiac's great reputation for dependability and the tremendous demand for it as a used car.

And, in times like these, aren't dependability and long life the two things you want most in a car? They're still yours in Pontiac because Pontiac pistons, bearings, crankshafts and other vital parts are unchanged in 1942. This has been accomplished without interfering with defense needs.

See this new Pontiac today. Check local delivered prices and see how close to lowest-priced cars Pontiac prices really are! Your present car may cover part or all of the down payment on a 1942 Pontiac. The balance may be paid in monthly installments.

Two Great Plants for Defense Work Only

Pontiac has two great plants—one in production, the other being rushed to completion—devoted solely to Defense; building rapid-fire cannon for the U. S. Navy. Thousands of Pontiac skilled craftsmen are now at work turning out this cannon which naval authorities say is "the most effective weapon of its size ever produced."



The only changes that have been made in the 1942 Pontiacs are improvements. For example, Pontiac's exclusive built-in oil cleaner. It is good for the lifetime of the car—requires no new "cartridges" to keep oil clean and pure. In 1942 its efficiency has been increased from two to three times over that of last year's cleaner!

VICTORIAN CLUB HEARS PAPER ON EARLY OHIO

Mrs. John Graham Describes First Settlements In This State; Accounts for Odd Characteristics; Tea Served After Program.

"EARLY SETTLEMENTS IN OHIO" was the subject of a paper presented by Mrs. John Graham at the Victorian club meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. D. W. Peppard, 93 West Fourth street. Mrs. Graham told the group that in the first 12 years after the close of the Revolutionary war, in 1783, all of Ohio was absorbed in vast land grants which included the Virginia military land, Western Reserve, the seven ranges, the Ohio company's purchase, the Symnes purchase and the United States military district.

A study of these grants explained some of the peculiar characteristics of Ohio. The analysis accounted for the Connecticut houses and the little white churches with New England spires in the Western Reserve area, as contrasted with the stately brick houses in the southern style and the fine courthouses in the Virginia military land.

When tea was served following the program and business meeting, Mrs. A. L. Price and Mrs. D. C. Lavender presided at the table. On Dec. 15, Victorian club members and Round Table club members will have a joint meeting at the Women's Club. Mrs. Harry Finefrock and Mrs. D. C. Lavender will be hostesses.

F.B.I. AGENT DESCRIBES ORGANIZATION IN TALK

Leo K. Cook Sponsored by Delta Kappa Gamma Sorority in Lecture at John Simpson Junior High Auditorium Monday Evening.

LEO K. COOK, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, presented a lecture on "The Public Position in National Defense" in the John Simpson Junior high school auditorium last evening. Program was sponsored by Delta Kappa Gamma sorority. Miss Helen Hartman,, president, introduced Meade K. Bates, chief of Mansfield police department, who in turn presented the speaker.

In his talk, Mr. Cook explained that the FBI has charge of 102 different types of federal violations. The organization dates back to 1924, when J. Edgar Hoover was put in charge. Some of the qualifications for FBI workers, outlined by Mr. Cook, are the following: A man must be between the ages of 23 and 35 years; he must be a graduate of a law school or college; he must have three years of business experience; must be an American citizen; must pass a rigid physical examination; must pass several written tests; his life must be investigated from childhood. When the FBI worker is appointed he is called to Washington, D. C., and is sworn in. Then he is sent to training school for 12 weeks.

In September, 1939, President Roosevelt chose the FBI to conruct investigations for the national defense program. This organization was selected because of its nation-wide set-up which includes 55 stations throughout the United States and its possessions; because these men come in contact constanly with other law enforcing agencies; they have a large finger print identification set-up; have a well equipped technical laboratory; and the FBI has a national police academy.

A series of conferences with local law enforcing agencies throughout the nation was started in 1940, in order to coordinate the small groups with the large. These meetings were so successful that they are now held every six months.

What can citizens do to help? Mr. Cook stated that they can report information concerning national defense; they can do all in their power to avoid the organization of vigilante groups; and they can be loyal to their own law enforcing group. The purpose of the FBI, said Mr. Cook, is to serve the public.

The Misses Leona Snyder and Reba Robinson were in charge of arrangements for the lecture. Next meeting will be the formal initiation dinner at the Women's Club at 6:30 p. m. on Dec. 15. This will be a joint meeting with the Alpha Pi chapter of Mt. Vernon.

Try This Old Home-Mixed Cough Relief. Surprising!

Child Could Make It. No Cooking. Big Saving.

You may not know it, but, in your own kitchen, and in just a moment, you can easily prepare a really surprising relief for coughs due to colds. It's old-fashioned—your mother probably used it—but for real results, it can't be beaten.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in throat and bronchial irritations.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid cough syrup, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick relief, it's a wonder. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, eases the soreness, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Ration the Children's Snack Meals

By GARRY MYERS, Ph.D.

When children come home from school, they may be very hungry. Many of us have memories of the fruit, cookies or doughnuts we enjoyed at these times. Most parents gladly provide such eatables for their children.

Obviously there needs to be some regulation. In case the youngster eats much then, he may "spoil his appetite for supper." Besides, if there are no restrictions, the cost in money and trouble can become excessive.

Often the child will bring one or several playmates with him, who are also hungry; and you certainly would not want your child to eat in their presence without sharing with them. While sharing is wholesome, none of them may do much real sharing; all may consume as much as they like.

Bad Moral Effect.

Provided this becomes a regular practice, the moral effect won't be good for your child or his playmates. If for example, he hands out to them a whole basket of fruit, he will feel undue power and suppose he can buy their favors with the food. They, in turn, become parasites on your family larder, with moral harm to them.

If, on the contrary, the amount of food or fruit he may have for this purpose be limited, he will learn some self-denials, in order to share. Suppose, for instance he be allowed only two apples and there be four children in the group. Then he will have occasion to allow himself at most only half an apple, even though he might prefer the two.

Often, in the refrigerator or elsewhere, there may be a cake, pie or pudding meant for dessert at the evening meal. Should the child and his playmates, without first knowing that they may, eat all or most of this food, see the inconvenience to the family later. The results also are morally bad for the children.

Yet it does little good to scold and explode emotionally over such matters after the damage has been done. Let there be definite planning beforehand, so the child knows what he may or may not have and how much. Most of all, he needs to learn that, unless he has been told he may have a certain food, he must not take it or give it to others. Let him learn that when there is any doubt at all, he must leave the food alone. Some such regulations would prevent many needless inconveniences and annoyances to parents and will have a wholesome effect on the child.

A selected list of books on manners, for children and parents, may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th St., New York City enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Nov. 26.

A lively and probably exciting day, with the energies keyed to the holiday spirit, is read from the active planetary aspects. However the interest will not all be centered on the pursuit of pleasure, since the commercial instinct as well as intellectual facilities are under high stimulus for profitable performance. Initiative and productive measures for increasing finances, power and position should not be neglected, but in all manner of expenditure or use of funds refrain from excess and prodigality. This applies in private matters also.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively, exciting and constructive year, with practical ideas, fine initiative or well-stimulated forces and mental faculties keyed to successful and lucrative performance. All commercial, progressive measures and professional objectives are under excellent prospects, but curb a tendency to rash, over-expansive and prodigal indulgences. This applies also to personal expenditures, as the pursuit of pleasure and happiness are also under exciting impetus.

A child born on this day should have much ability, versatility and enthusiasm, demonstrated in a practical, professional or commercial channel. It will be successful, popular but inclined to be indulgent and lavish.

DOLL PATTERN 1020

Just cut out two identical pieces — embroider the doll's face on one—join the pieces with a band—stuff—add yarn curls —and that's all there is to making this doll! Her clothes are easily sewn, too. Pattern 1020 contains a pattern and directions for making doll and clothes; materials required.

Send 10 cents in coin for this pattern to Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

The younger set has adopted the "Sweater" silhouette as their very own—it's so becoming! The bodice of Pattern 9911 by Marian Martin fits smoothly down to the hips—where the skirt swings out in a graceful flare. . . . the two panels in front aid this effect. The bodice is fitted by darts at the waist, and accented by the unusual rounded yoke at the neck that continues in the back, and may be made of contrast fabric. Groups of tiny little buttons are pert, too, used to accent the center seam in front, and a further optional detail is the lapped seam at the hips. . . . let the Sew Chart help with such details. Three-quarter sleeves are smart—but you may make them long or short instead.

Pattern 9911 may be ordered only in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19. Size 13 requires 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Almost any minute now," my father replied, and at my look of amazement he explained:

"Immediately after you told me Harry was hurt, I gave a signal to one of the men which meant to get into the armored car and send a radio message to the hideaway, asking the surgeon to come up here at once."

I might have known how super-efficient he was. I told myself, chagrined at my stupidity. But I had no time for rgret as Miss Whitlock was speaking again.

"Then I'll do nothing about this bandage until he gets here," she said.

"I'm afraid it wasn't a very workmanlike job," I deprecated.

She shot a glance of smiling reassurance at me.

More Praise For Madge.

"It was a most effective one," she said warmly. "It stopped the bleeding, and hasn't bound the arm too tightly. What more could anyone ask?"

"What more, indeed?" my father acquiesced, smiling at me. Then he turned again to the nurse.

"I should like to consult Mrs. Underwood about some arrangements I have to make," he said. "Would you rather I talked to her here or outside? I can do either."

Miss Whitlock looked at Lillian, sitting as close to her husband's side as she could get without touching his wounded arm. Then she spoke decisively.

"If your conversation doesn't require any attention or speech or action on Mr. Underwood's part, there is no reason why you shouldn't talk to his wife here."

"Thank you," my father said. "That is understood of course, Lillian, as I explained before, I shall have to use your basement as a temporary hospital, because I don't want to remove those men down there before late tonight, when this neighborhood is deserted.

"I shall want to set up three strong cots and make them into hospital beds. There are only two wounded men down there now, but the third no doubt will put up a fight when he is taken out of that locked room, and might very easily need a hospital cot before the fracas is over."

"He is a tough baby," Harry Underwood commented in a weak voice. Miss Whitlock shook an admonitory forefinger at him, and Lillian whispered: "Please don't talk, Darling!"

"Okay!" he whispered back with a weak smile at her, and my father spoke again.

"What I'd like to know, Lillian," my father resumed, "is this. Have you three strong cots in the house, with bedding for them, or will I have to send outside for them?"

"Indeed, you won't," Lillian said. "I've had emergency cots—more than three — ever since — since Marian went away to school and began bringing her friends home."

Sympathy For Lillian.

I found my hand moving involuntarily upward to clutch at my own throat, suddenly choked with sympathy for the woman trying so bravely to crush back the poignant memories accompanying her answer.

"The cots are very strong," Lillian went on. "They are stored in the attic, along with the mattresses, which are tied up in moth-proof bags. The bedding and linen for them are in three chests of drawers standing directly next them, the only chests in that section of the attic. You can't mistake them. Or, I can go up and direct your men where to go."

"You will do nothing of the kind," I told her firmly. "I am familiar enough with your attic to find those things, and I'll superintend their removal to the basement. There's only one thing more. Two of those men are wounded. Your bedding should be protected."

"You'll find plenty of rubber sheeting in the drug closet in the big bathroom on this floor," she replied, and I turned to my father.

Madge Volunteers.

"Do you want me to go up, now," I asked.

"Yes," he answered. "I'll go with you." As he turned toward the door Miss Whitlock spoke hurriedly.

"If you can wait until the surgeon has seen Mr. Underwood, and I am through attending him, I will be glad to make up those hospital beds for you."

"Thank you," my father replied, "but one of the men downstairs was once an orderly in a hospital. He can do everything I wish, and you are needed here."

He drew me outside, and with the door closed, spoke mutedly but tensely.

"You know Lillian far better than I do. You saw her emotion just now when she spoke of Marion. Is she in danger of going to pieces, do you think?"

Shampooing Hair Can Be Pleasant

By MME QUI VIVE

Girls and women who do their shampoos may fancy that they make a good job of the head ducking performance, but not more than one among ten really gets the hair clean. Do we wear hoots from the beauty gallery? Ask any professional operator and she will tell you tall tales of customers who have come in with their tresses so gummed with soap scum that some medium other than soap has been necessary to get the silky threads in form again.

We offer some suggestions. Do not rub the bar of soap over the head! if you do some particles will cling to the shafts. Place a small bar of soap in a quart mason jar. Add one scant half teaspoonful of borax to soften the water, fill the jar with hot water, let stand three days before using. Pour off a cupful of the clear top liquid, add an equal amount of warm water, and you will have enough for one shampoo. The amount will last for a long time.

Start with a thorough brushing to remove dead shafts and surface dust. Massage the scalp well. Before applying the suds, rinse the hair. The best way is to bend over the bathtub. Use a spray and a strong current of water; a spray is more effective than a shower that hits only the top of your head.

If the hair is thick or if it is excessively oily, three latherings, each one followed by a rousing rinsing, are necessary. The first soaping seldom foams up. The other two will. Use plenty of friction. Treat the forward hair line and the temples with particular care. Hair is thinner at the sides; atmospheric dust penetrates to the scalp.

When using the spray, lift your brain wool, strand by strand, so the water will pound upon the flesh. There's no such thing as being too thorough. Another thing: many a woman yowls and complains about a permanent that has gone stringy, when the trouble is caused by deposits of soap scum that keep the shafts from springing into coils. The best means of getting rid of soap is by shampooing with eggs. Seven or even eight eggs are necessary for the treatment.

Before combing the hair after the shampoo fasten up the top portion with a hair pin. Start combing out the snarls at either side, then do the hair on the crown of the head. When using metal curlers to make ringlets, or when arranging pin curls, it is more convenient to start at the left side, work around to the right, arrange top locks last.

Short whisps at the neckline—we all seem to have a few— stay in curls best if wound upon small rods. See that the hair is as dry as a bone before unwinding.

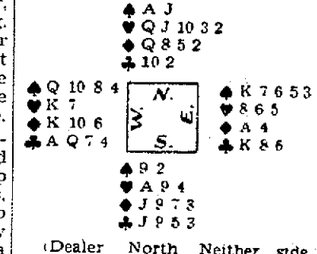
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOW YOUR STRENGTH

After you have passed on your chance to open the bidding, your partner will be wary and count you for a rather weak hand unless you take action to show him you were pretty close to strong enough for an original bid. It may even be that your hand was not anywhere near strong enough generally for an opening call but even better than a minimum opener if you find a good suit fit. In that case you should not make it difficult for him to size up your power but should jump at once to game as soon as you feel certain it is there.



(Dealer North Neither side vulnerable)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♥	2 ♠
3 ♥	3 ♠

And that sounded to West like a one-trick sacrifice bid. He had heard East pass on his first turn then make a minimum free bid over 1-Heart on his second chance. Even after West had shown his fit for the spades with a free call over 2-Hearts, East did not give a clear-cut raise over North's 3-Hearts, but merely mentioned his own suit again, at the lowest legal level. West did exactly right to pass this.

It was up to East to bid 4-Spades that last time and his failure to do so was solely to blame for the side's failure to score an easy game. If East had stopped to figure he would have realized that his only reason for passing originally was his lack of defensive values with only a total of two high-card tricks. But when the question of his last bid came along he was no longer interested in defensive tricks only in offensive ones. His hand for this purpose playing at spades was at least as good as a minimum opener. In fact he could count a very good four playing tricks.

As it turned out he could make game with his eyes shut and in fact scored five-odd because of the happy location of the heart K at the right of the A. The two major suit aces took the only tricks made against him.

Ham and Eggs Fixed In a New Style

By BETSY NEWMAN

Sunday night supper is the time to try those "different" recipes out on your friends, who are usually in a mellow mood at this time. Ham and eggs is a very ordinary dish—but a great favorite at any time—so try ham and eggs this way.

Today's Menu.

Hot Bouillon Crisp Crackers
Ham Balls in Mustard Sauce
Green Peas
Hot Biscuits Cake
Fruit Coffee

Ham Balls In Mustard Sauce.

1¼ cps. baked ham, ground
½ cp. grated raw potato
Dash black pepper
1 egg, beaten
2 tsps. finely chopped parsley
1 tbsp. ham fat or shortening
3 hard cooked eggs
3 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. flour 2 cps. milk
½ tsp. dry mustard

Combine first 5 ingredients and mix well. Shape mixture into balls, allowing 1 heaping tablespoon to each ball. Brown in fat. Melt butter in saucepan, blend in flour, add milk, stirring constantly until thick and smooth; stir in mustard, add hot ham balls and hard-cooked eggs which have been cut in halves lengthwise. Place over boiling water and heat 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Serves 4 or 5.

* * *

Orange and Walnut Filling.

½ lb. English walnuts
Juice and pulp of 1 orange
1 cp. powdered sugar

Shell nuts, reserving a few unbroken halves for top of cake. Cook orange pulp, juice and sugar to the soft ball stage (238 degrees F.). Cool, then beat until it thickens; add chopped nuts and spread between layers of cake. Decorate top of cake with nut halves reserved for same. You can, if you wish, frost top of cake with plain orange frosting, decorated with nuts, using all of the filling for between layers. Plain orange frosting is made with the grated rind and juice of 1 orange, with enough powdered sugar added to make it the right consistency to spread.

EXPECT 250 TO ATTEND STATE FARM MEETING

County Farm Bureau Plans To Send Big Delegation To Convention Friday.

Approximately 250 members of the Richland County Farm bureau are expected to attend the annual Farm bureau state convention Friday in Columbus.

Richland county participation in the conclave, W. B. Davis, Richland Farm Bureau manager said would be limited to the first day of the Friday and Saturday meet. On that day bureau branches in Lexington, Bellville and Shelby as well as the Mansfield headquarters will be closed.

The majority of the 250 attending will travel to Columbus in private automobiles. The bureau has chartered a bus which will accommodate approximately 35 persons, Davis said.

Official Richland county delegates will be L. L. Rinehart of Sandusky township, C. R. Mengert of Monroe township, Warren Smith of Butler township and Mary Gramly of Weller township.

Speakers at the convention will be Perry L. Green, state bureau president; L. A. Taylor, assistant state secretary; M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana, U. S. department of agriculture official; and L. J. Esterbrook of the British minister of agriculture.

During the sessions the organization president will make his annual address and Taylor will make a report of operations during the year.

Only direct participation Richland county members will make to the meeting will be in the 1,000-voice Farm bureau chorus under the direction of Ellis Emanuel Snyder of Capital university.

More than 4,000 Ohio Farm bureau members and their families are expected to attend the sessions in Memorial hall in Columbus.

Petition Council For Dale Avenue Sewer Tap Refund

Residents on the north side of Dale avenue have petitioned city council to have sewer tap fees paid by the residents on the south side of the street refunded to the property owners paying for the original cost of the sewer.

The property-owners point out in their petition that their properties were assessed $3.25 per foot for the construction of a sewer line but that new home owners are tapping into the sewer at little cost. They ask that the payments by new property-owners be refunded to those originally assessed.

Council, however, passed an ordinance two months ago ordering all payments for use of sewers and water-lines which have already been financed should revert to the general fund rather than being refunded to the property owners paying for the project.

Warning Saboteurs: Don't Try Your Tricks! FBI-Trained Men Guard Defense Industries

And They're Trained to Detect Every Move of Enemy Agents.

By BERT H. DAVIS
(Central Press Writer)

BUFFALO — "Yes, I'll talk," agreed Steve.

"I'll tell you as much as I'm supposed to tell the board of directors of the company that pays my salary. That's fair enough, isn't it?"

Big, long-legged Steve spoke frankly for 20 minutes. You won't see his picture with this story today, but I can tell you he's in his middle 30's, a law school graduate, thoroughly trained in scientific crime investigation, a skeet shooter, a bowler in the 170 to 180 class.

Steve, former G-man, heads the "bureau of identification" in a big defense plant. Like a number of other well-trained chiefs in the protective forces of defense plants, his daily job is to outwit saboteurs and spies.

Careful Checking.

This is more than a matter of photographing and finger printing every worker, supplying the employes with passports and identification buttons, and learning to recognize the men who belong in the most vital departments and near the most important machines or control posts.

Steve's responsibility is to prevent and resist an invasion. Enemies want to get inside the gates of a plant like the one that employs him. Some of these invaders would be spies, sent to get facts about production, tests, the responsible personnel, how the output could be stalled or damaged or destroyed.

Working closely with spies the daring operatives in sabotage, whose malicious michief runs all the way from secretly damaging or weakening military equipment to attempting to wreck an entire factory.

Like Britain's seaside patrols, the 200 guards at Steve's plant never know when invasion will come nor can they guess its form.

Two former G-men are the day and night chiefs of the protective force. Steve insists that his work is of secondary importance, yet he admits personally discovering several efforts at sabotage and a number of suspicious characters among applicants for jobs, visitors and once trusted former employes.

Precautions.

"The watchmen spot-check every tenth man in his movements around the plant, as well as in and out," Steve said. "Some of our men are working in plain clothes. The police give us tips about strangers in town, and some of our men attend police lineups in order to keep in touch with arrests that have some bearing on our work. We check everything that comes through the gates—railroad cars, trucks, packages, the company mail and, of course, visitors.

"As you know, a plant like ours is brilliantly illuminated inside and out all night. We have a signal system that puts every guard and a good many other trusted employes on the alert, if anything suspicious happens in any part of the plant.

"Sabotage has been attempted, but we think we've caught every case—and also every person directly involved."

G-man sets up spectograph to examine fragments after a suspicious industrial explosion.

X-ray picture of cable, showing how saboteur thrust needle under insulation.

Gene, his "jig" and his handiwork are well protected now against enemies of defense. Note Gene's badge.

Knowing what invaders want to see or steal or damage, the watchmen throw particularly strong protection around the master plans and models and dies. The guards know which machines would be hard to replace. They have a mental picture of the power lines, water mains and sprinkler systems in the area in which they work. Damage to these might not merely delay production, but could injure machinery and work in process.

In the larger plants, a worker's pass is good only in his own department and along the route he has been told to take between the gate and his bench. If the employe seems unduly curious about other departments and what's in them, the watchmen may get curious about him.

Learned Rapidly.

All these—and other—precautions against espionage and sabotage are new for American industries. Our defense plants learned vigilance and protection almost overnight—well taught by G-men and former G-men and G-trained policemen, who have been prepared to meet such a need, and met it excellently.

"But there had to be some cases of suspicious fires and explosions that 'couldn't just happen' and unexplained failures of machines and parts, before some of the boys could take this seriously," said Steve. "Some of the plants exhibited parts that showed malicious damage or hidden defects. The foremen, supers and union officials were quick to admit that we had something tangible to fight—and we could count on them."

One plant had good protection of property and men by the spring of this year, except in one detail. A sewer runs beneath some of the buildings, and anyone could have entered the plant at its most vital parts by coming up through a manhole.

A manager who prided himself on the careful checking of every mechanic employed had been "farming out" the cleaning job of the plant, and knew nothing about the personnel employed by the janitor-contractor. The possibilities for spying and sabotage when cleaners took over whole departments were beyond calculation. The plant was at the mercy of these unknown temporary workers.

"I've told you plenty, I guess," concluded Steve. "Got any questions? I'll answer them in five years."

GEN. JOHNSON: Launch Drive for Ceiling on Profits

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON—Without much regard to the merits of the case, except to say that the United Mine Workers' strike in the captive mines imperilled the national defense, John L. Lewis has been castigated in editorial and other comment, including that by the president, to an extent that few Americans have ever had to suffer during peace-time.

Johnson

This column has had no particular brief for Lewis in this controversy except that it has tried to show that like all other questions there are two sides to this one.

The settlement of this trouble, announced Saturday, will doubtless be very widely ascribed to a retreat by Lewis for fear and under pressure. That is the way of the human animal under stress of great emotion. There will be few enough plaudits for the president of the United Mine Workers' action as one of great courage and patriotism. At least this will be so for the present.

I venture to believe, however, that when all the facts are known and appreciated that it will be appraised in an entirely different manner. I think that even the now-resentful sympathetic strikers in the commercial mines will be applauding Lewis' action as an almost perfect solution of the entire vexing problem and as a well considered piece of strategy without class selfishness and without loss of any material advantage to the miners themselves—miners of all classes.

It is difficult to measure the immense feeling of relief that has come to the army in this sudden and unexpected escape from one of the most tragic and serious problems that ever confronted it—the prospect of having to shoot down more or less defenseless American citizens in the exercise of what they felt, however erroneously, to be their rights.

It could have affected the popularity of the army permanently, torn this country asunder with disunity, and even made our form of government, if not a laughing stock, a matter of serious question as to its efficiency.

The only doubt I have heard discussed by responsible officers is as to whether this really is a permanent and dependable settlement of this trouble. On this point I feel confident in assuring them that it is. The only remaining areas of dissatisfaction are among the sympathetic strikers in the commercal lines. Among all such miners the influence of both Lewis and Mr. Philly Murray, CIO president, is so great that there is no real cause for concern.

In the campaign of villification against Lewis' leadership, has been lately dragged out the so-called Herrin massacres—in which members of an independent union, were ruthlessly shot down by representatives of the United Mine Workers.

I once had occasion to receive a delegation of leaders of that union and spent half a day with them. That was ample time to learn what anybody who knows Herrin should have known already, that the controversy there was no pink tea on either side.

While wiping tears from his eyes at the memory of the death of one of his comrades, the spokesman for those American mine workers told me, in answer to a question as to how Terry (or some such name) met his death; "Oh, Terry had just blown three of them ———s' heads off with an automatic shot gun."

This is no argument that Mr. Lewis is any sweet-scented geranium in any kind of fight, but when people begin to present one side of these highly complex and controversial questions and there is nobody to present the other, we have already gone too far in the emotional hysteria of war which is the chief danger of any nation.

GIANT SPENDING SPLURGE SEEN FOR HOLIDAYS

Trade Experts Predict Outlay Will Be 5 Per Cent Above 1929 Figure.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Spurred by the jingle of national defense dollars, a $2,400,000,000 national Christmas shopping splurge is in the making this season, merchandise trade experts here estimated today.

Such a volume of business would exceed that of the boom year 1929 by more than 5 per cent and would be 11 per cent more than last year.

These estimates were compiled in a survey of the nation's wholesale and retail trade during the last 12 years prepared under the direction of Percy Wilson, director of Chicago's merchandise mart.

With preparations complete for the flood of buying already under way in the name of Santa Claus, merchandisers were reported by mart officials to be ready with shelves and display rooms well stocked despite priorities and material shortages. Considering the increased flow of dollars, merchandisers do not expect higher costs of goods, taxes, restrictions on installment buying and shortages of some materials to stem the trade volume.

Wilson said the survey showed that although holiday business will be the largest on record, it will not keep pace with the year's average increase of 18.9 per cent in retail trade so far because there was an unusual spurt in Christmas sales last year as first effects of the defense program were felt.

The increase in dollar-volume of business will not fully reflect the huge amount of goods to be sold, he said, because price average 12.5 per cent lower for Christmas items than in 1929. He estimated that the total amount of merchandise to be sold will be almost 20 per cent more than in 1929. Distribution of rising operating expenses over a greater quantity of goods has resulted in keeping Christmas prices below the 1929 level.

All will be millionaires at the Salvation Army Friday night. The occasion will mark another in the series of special monthly social meetings of the Army members and fake paper money will be so plentiful it can be tossed away. Bills in all kinds of denominations have been distributed the past few weeks according to Adjt. "Something terrible is going to happen," an anonymous telephone caller told Mansfield police last night and asked that a police cruiser be sent to a Vennum avenue address. Arriving there, police found the owner of the home unable to tell who had made the call and why. The resident told police she had been out of the city since early in October and had just returned two hours before. Police dismissed the call as that from "just another crank."

LEGISLATORS SEEKING SHARP LIMITATIONS

Seek Separate Anti-Inflation Measure as Price Control Debate Continues.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house banking committee bowed again to administration wishes today and voted, 14 to 8, to restore to its price-control bill authority for the government to buy, sell or store any commodity if necessary to maintain price stability.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Supporters of the Gore bill to freeze the nation's price and wage structure today opened a drive for drastic profit limitations as another anti-inflation step.

Profit curbs have been ruled out of consideration in the pending price control measure as technically not germane to that bill, so supporters sought to get approval of the powerful house ways and means committee to incorporate it in separate legislation.

The move came as the house went into its second day of debate on the price control matter, with the issue having largely boiled down to a fight between those favoring the far-reaching overall plan of Rep. Gore, (D.) Tenn., to freeze all prices, wages and rents, and those advocating a banking committee measure which would rigidly limit farm price ceilings, and specifically exempt wages from control.

Proponents of the overall plan privately conceded that the rule barring inclusion of profit limitations had seriously lessened support for their measure.

Gore, who originally had an eight- per cent profit limitation in his substitute for the banking committee bill, deleted it from that measure, and announced he would seek ways and means committee action on it.

It was recalled that Gore's plan is not as drastic as that recently suggested by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who advocated that profits be limited to six per cent of invested capital.

Meanwhile Minority Leader Martin called a caucus of all house Republicans on price control for tomorrow morning.

Martin indicated that many, if not most, Republicans may oppose the price control measure unless the house defeats a committee-approved amendment which would permit the administration to place virtually all business transactions, except agriculture, under a licensing system in order to enforce the act.

The house is scheduled to complete general debate on the complicated measure tonight, and start voting on amendments tomorrow. Predictions are that some kind of a bill will be passed by the end of the week.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I would like today to take up a problem which has been bothering one of Broadway's favorite ladies, Miss Ruth Gordon.

At lunch the other day Miss Gordon said she thought I might do the feminine half of the theater-going public a great service by complaining in print about the pink lights in most of the theaters.

Kilgallen

She said of recent evenings she has taken her seat at the Lyceum or the Music Box, settled herself, and found herself thinking: "Goodness, that woman in front of me looks tired; you'd think she'd stay home and go to bed."

Then she'd glance at another lady further down the row, and that lady would look haggard, too. Along about this point she'd whip out her vanity case, gaze at her own visage, and find to her horror that she herself was three shades whiter than Camille.

Miss Gordon thinks this shows great lack of consideration, tact, and gallantry on the part of theater managers. "A girl spends a perfectly good half hour putting on a perfectly good lipstick called 'allure red' and then she goes to the theater and they turn on those pink lights, and every bit of the red is washed out, and where's the allure?"

She's right, of course. There is something about pink lights that makes a face surrounded by them look yellow. And yellow has not yet been sold to the American public as a color for faces; this year it is fashionable to look pink and white.

And so, dear Messrs. Gordon, Freedley, Shumlin, Abbott et al, you will kindly unscrew those rosy lamps and at a very slight cost replace them with something becoming. I don't know what color bulb it is that makes women look good, but whatever it is, for Heaven's sake get it.

I recommend "Sundown," the new Gene Tierney starrer, as a good action film, and I am one of that clan that believes moving pictures are best when they are moving.

Nelson Rockefeller hasn't been able to get any polar bear cubs for his Prometheus Fountain zone, (the zoos are short of polar bears this season), and I think that's too bad. My suggestion to Mr. Rockefeller is: Why not get some emus?

Every crossword puzzler has used the beast for a filler-in, and I am quite sure no one knows what he looks like. I guarantee there would be quite a bit of excitement attendant upon the sojourn of a few emus in the Plaza.

My idea of a smooth, easy-to-watch dance team is the exper' duo of Maxine Barrat and Don Loper. They don't look like the kind of teams the Hartmans imitate, if you know what I mean.

I was reminded by an invitation to a "crochet fashion show" at the Waldorf-Astoria that one of my life's ambitions has always been to have enough leisure to sit down on a sofa and crochet something.

Knitting has always seemed a pretty relaxing and dilettante occupation, but crocheting! That's really a dainty pastime, and I hope to work up to it by the time I am 70.

Funny that almost half the show girls in town are near-sighted. You'd be surprised at how many of them put on glasses the minute they leave the stage. (Men do make passes, though?)

RACE WEATHER TO FIND HOMES

Officials Hunt Refuge For 400 After Fire Rages In Seward, Alaska.

(By International News Service)

SEWARD, Alaska—Federal and local officials raced against the weather today to find refuge for more than 400 persons left homeless by the $1,500,000 fire that destroyed half of Seward's business district.

Freezing temperatures of a typical Alaskan winter menaced the homeless persons as seriously as did the blaze that wiped out their residences yesterday. Army officials from nearby Fort Raymond aided in converting an American Legion hall, a skating rink and several lodge rooms into temporary shelters, but heating facilities were inadequate.

Meanwhile, Seward, an important port for military supplies, dug out of the wreckage caused by the 12-hour inferno that razed 15 business places and numerous homes. Some structures were dynamited to halt spread of the flames while every male citizen of Seward and soldiers from Fort Raymond battled the fire.

No government property was damaged. Buildings destroyed included the Alaska Steamship company offices; Alaska Gateway Newspaper plant; Seward, Overland and Terminal hotels; the Pioneer club and the Northern Bar. The fire was blamed upon spillage of oil from a barber shop heater.

Seward, a miniature "boom town" due to defense activity, has an estimated population of 1,500—more than double the normal figure—and was suffering from a housing shortage even before the fire.

Derailed Car Starts Rock Fall In Ohio Mine.

BELLAIRE—(INS)—Sixteen men injured in a rock fall at the Rail and River Coal company mine seven miles from Bellaire were recovering today while a state mine inspector sought to determine what derailed a car and sent it crashing into roof supports.

The car, running wild, knocked out posts that brought hundreds of tons of rock crashing into a mine level where 130 men were being transported on a train.

Sixteen of the men were trapped by the fall but the other 114 disregarded danger to dig out their companions, four of whom were seriously hurt and lay under a cracking ceiling from which further rock threatened to fall at any moment.

HEAD OF OHIO BANKS ELECTED CLEVELAND TRUST COMPTROLLER

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Nearly two years ago a tall, athletic stranger walked into Gov. John W. Bricker's office, shook hands and stated his business.

"Governor, I understand the job as state superintendent of banks is open and I'd like to have it."

The governor, perhaps taken aback by the forthright attack and sparring for time, inquired why.

"Well," the visitor replied, "I would like to have the experience and I believe it would lead to something better. Besides, I think I can do a good job for you."

Although he had lived in Ohio only three years, was unknown in the administration and had no political connections, Rodney Prior Lien got the job.

Now, having made good and gained experience, he is moving on to something better.

On Jan. 1, Lien, one-time railroad section hand, brickyard worker and water boy for a sewer construction gang, will become vice president and comptroller of the largest bank in Ohio.

Directors of the Cleveland Trust company, which has deposits of $842,000,000 and resources of $524,000,000, announced his election yesterday. The salary was not disclosed, but Lien's present job pays $7,500 a year, topped only by the governor's $10,000.

Governor Bricker said that "nobody at all is in view right now," as a successor to Lien.

Lien was president of the National Bank of Lima when Bricker appointed him superintendent of banks on Jan. 10, 1940, and at 38 he became the youngest man ever to hold the office.

During his tenure he concentrated on eliminating substandard assets of state banks, with the result that their "other real estate" holdings have dropped from $24,475,000 to $12,655,000.

VOTE ON STRIKE

Welders Threaten Action To Tie Up Shipbuilding.

OAKLAND, Calif—(U.P.)—Forty-five hundred welders vote tomorrow on a proposal to strike six major and six minor San Francisco bay shipyards holding $672,000,000 in contracts for naval and merchant vessels.

The strike vote was called following a breakdown of Washington conferences between the welders, heads of the American Federation of Labor's metal trades department, and the office of Production Management. The welders have withdrawn from the AFL to form an independent organization for which they seek bargaining rights despite AFL closed shop contracts in most yards.

The AFL has threatened to refuse them permission to work.

America's Youth Gets Its Chance to Work

GIRL operates automatic riveter.

By LUCRECE HUDGINS
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—Remember the days when Pop couldn't retire from business because his children came home to roost? Well, today many a youngster is building his pop a home in the country and stocking up the cupboard with foodstuffs for the lean days that may lie ahead.

Youth finally has a chance to take off its coat and sweat at honest labor.

Just for instance, here in Washington—the Boys and Girls Town of the nation—the D. C. Employment Center alone placed 34,332 young people in local jobs during the 18-month period from January 1940 to June 1941.

The heads of that center say, "There has never been in the history of this organization so great an opportunity for unskilled labor."

Over at the labor department, statisticians figure that America will need "an additional three millions workers before another year." And the apprenticeship unit of the department adds, "Youth, unskilled youth, will supply a large part of that need."

Even the kids in school are becoming breadwinners, in 29 states, during the first six months of 1940, more than 1,200 youngsters received certificates permitting them to do part-time work

But what about the kids working in non-defense plants which have to shut down because of priority difficulties? Where is their slice of the prosperity pie?

Heads of the federal committee on Apprenticeship declare these boys are rapidly absorbed in defense industries. The problem is not one of re-employment but of migration. In most cases the youngsters must move to distant cities and this intensifies the already serious housing shortage in defense centers.

What about opportunities for unskilled youth with no work training at all? Well, it so happens that the federal committee on appreticeship is especially authorized by congress to fix things so that young boys, at work for the first time, may learn skilled labor while actually on the job.

Under this plan a young fellow goes to work for around 35 cents an hour. While he's learning the trade he's also speeding up the defense output.

During the last months of his apprenticeship, the youth gets as much as a dollar an hour.

Of course, there's many a lad who still isn't able to draw a week's pay today. It may be because he hasn't found just the kind of job he wants.

Then again, it might be because he just doesn't feel like rolling up his sleeves and getting his hands dirty.

BOY, IT'S GREAT TO FEEL GOOD!
It's a free country! But everyone isn't free from nagging nerves, constant fatigue, a poor digestion—the half-hearted existence that may be a sign of a lack of vitamins and minerals. If you are deficient, a good diet—strengthened by vitamins and minerals—may make you feel better than you ever thought you could!

Questions and Answers about

VITAMINS

What are vitamins? Vitamins are essential foods just as are proteins, fats, carbohydrates and minerals

Why are vitamins so important? An adequate supply of vitamins is essential to health. They help the body to use other foods properly They help build resistance, help keep the body in good working order, and, in children, are needed for normal growth and development.

How can you insure a vitamin-rich diet? Eat protective foods—milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables. And to make sure you get all the vitamins you normally need, fortify your diet with a well-balanced vitamin supplement—preferably one that contains minerals as well as vitamins

Is there such a thing as too many vitamins? Hardly. Science has indicated that the body retains only those vitamins it needs.

Is there a good vitamin-mineral supplement? Yes—a new product, Vimms, contains 6 vitamins and 3 minerals in 1 tablet

Do the vitamins in Vimms have the same effect as those in other foods? Yes. Vitamins are vitamins. There is no such thing as a "bad" vitamin. The vitamins in Vimms are chemically standardized and biologically controlled. And their potencies are guaranteed.

Are Vimms safe for children? Yes, they are perfectly safe for children. Like cod-liver oil, they contain vitamins A and D. In addition, they contain four other essential vitamins required by children as well as by adults. What is more, they taste good.

Who needs vitamins? Recent studies by Government experts have revealed that 3 out of 4 people need more vitamins and minerals. If you are one of those who are deficient, you may be tired, listless, dull—have a poor appetite, catch cold constantly.

Why are minerals necessary? Minerals are needed for bones, teeth, blood and body tissues. Some minerals work directly with vitamins—for instance, calcium and phosphorus with Vitamin D. Vimms provide both these two vital minerals plus iron, as well as six essential vitamins.

How often should Vimms be taken? Daily! Most vitamins are not stored in the body to any great extent, and you must constantly renew your supply of them. Minerals must also be taken regularly.

Who sponsors Vimms? Vimms are sponsored by Lever Brothers Company—famous for food research. They were developed in close collaboration with nationally known vitamin experts.

Are Vimms expensive? No. Vimms give you six vitamins and three minerals in fully adequate balanced potencies, at the lowest price ever for any product of comparable type and potency.

Where can you buy Vimms? At your neighborhood drug store—right now—in either the regular or the large economy (96 tablets) size. Look for the box with the big red Vimms label.

GALION ROTARY HEARS ADDRESS ON NEAR EAST

Native Armenian, Now Citizen of U. S., Says Turkey Can't Beat Nazis.

GALION — Guest speaker at the meeting of the Galion Rotary club Monday night, was Maurice Boyajian, former Armenian, who came to the United States before the World war and received his citizenship in 1925. He has two sons, one of them now a flyer in the United States air corps, and a daughter.

Boyajian told of the history of Armenia and about his education in an American school in Armenia which was a branch of Robert college at Istanbul, Turkey. There are 15 American schools in Armenia, he said.

At the end of the World war, a third of the Armenians were destroyed by the Turks and the Russian Communists, the speaker said. He also told about his experiences in Turkish concentration camps and prisons during his boyhood, and of the restrictions of life under Turkish rule.

From 1904 to the beginning of the World war there was such a rise in influence of Germans in Turkey that Turkey had no alternative but to take the German side in the conflict, the speaker related.

At the present time, he said there are 600,000 German troops within 100 miles of Istanbul. The Turkish army, although composed of valiant fighters, lacks modern weapons in sufficient numbers to either wage or withtand the blitzkreig, and his opinion was that Germany will go through Turkey when she is ready to attack the Suez. The speaker was also of the opinion that Russia will continue to fight as long as supplies come from England and the United States.

He concluded his talk by expressing his appreciation for his American citizenship.

John Jagers of the Athens Rotary club, was a guest Monday night.

THEATERS

Held over at the Ohio through Friday, "Shadow of the Thin Man," co-starring William Powell and Myrna Loy, mixes hilarious domestic life of the screen's popular detective with a murder mystery. Miss Loy continues her sleuthing as the detective's wife, and Dickie Hall plays the young son of the family. Revolving around a race track murder the picture casts an assortment of characters ranging from big shot gamblers to rival newspapermen. Barry Nelson, Donna Reed, Sam Levene, Alan Baxter, and Stella Adler are in the supporting cast.

"Ladies In Retirement," the turbulent drama revolving around a girl's determination to give her two mentally deficient sisters a sanctuary no matter what the cost, is now showing at the Madison. Starring Ida Lupino the picture presents Elsa Lanchester and Edith Barrett as the two sisters, and Louis Hayward as a likeable knave given to blackmail and other villainy. The picture is set in the stark, fog-hung marshes of England and features Evelyn Keyes and Isobel Elson. Sharing the bill is Fred Astaire's dancing vehicle with a military angle, "You'll Never Get Rich." Rita Hayworth, Robert Benchley, and Frieda Inescort are in the cast.

"Sun Valley Serenade," with Sonja Henie and John Payne is the attraction at the Ritz. The skating star appears as a refugee taken under the wing of Glenn Miller's orchestra when she turns out to be a grown-up young lady instead of a child. Milton Berle is in the cast. "Bad Men of Missouri," with Dennis Morgan and Wayne Morris is the co-feature.

Another in the series of the murder mysteries based upon the exploits of the popular fiction and radio sleuth, "Ellery Queen and the Perfect Crime," starring Ralph Bellamy, opens Wednesday at the Park. The crime this time centers around the death of a financier who has betrayed the confidence of his friends and associates. Margaret Lindsay plays opposite the star and the cast includes Spring Byington, H. B. Warner and Sidney Blackmer. "The Richest Man In Town," the co-feature, has Frank Craven and Edgar Buchanan.

"Ringside Maisie," with Ann Sothern in the role of the popular Broadway showgirl, is the attraction at the Majestic. Walt Disney's "Reluctant Dragon," in technicolor, is the companion picture. Robert Benchley is featured in the latter production which takes the audience on a tour through the Disney studio.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Comes a very nice letter from Johnny Burns, the managing man, who used to handle softball and basketball and other teams for the Athletic Supplies, and who now is in Battery D, 12th Battalion, at Fort Eustis, Va.

Still interested in Mansfield sports, Johnny says he hopes I'll be able to give the city basketball league plenty of publicity this winter so that this organization will be able to grow and prosper.

Well, now, I think that can be arranged o. k., and I hope, along with John, that the league will grow, and prosper.

John still has the urge to be managing athletic teams, and he already is sending out challenges to other battalions in camp on behalf of a basketball team which he says is pretty good.

And I wouldn't be a bit surprised if John should send a challenge one day to a guy named Hitler, now that they're both playing the army league.

And if John's going as good as he went in the Richland county golf tournament at Westbrook one Sunday this fall, I think maybe he'd win any kind of a match Mr. Hitler would care to play. John came in third in that tourney.

Spiv Harris, sports editor of the Mt. Vernon News, has my sympathy. Spiv had to write an apology to Mt. Vernon cage coach Myron Prech for saying that the Yellow Jackets had 17 six-footers on their court squad.

Seems that the 17 were just nearly that tall.

It's reported the wolves are out at Elyria. The fans didn't like the unsuccessful grid season just ended, and they've demanding a change in coaches.

And part of the unsuccessful season included that touchdown parade Mansfield's Tygers put on for the edification of the Elyria fans.

SANFORD HEADS INDUSTRIAL CIRCUIT

Keglers in the Industrial league last night were led by Sanford of the Buckeye Beer team with 534 pins during the three games. His high game was 223.

SEALS TRIBE DEAL

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—With a project for a working agreement with the farm-less Cleveland Indians as their major effort in mind President Charles Graham and Manager "Lefty" O'Doul of the Pacific Coast circuit's San Francisco Seals were off today for the minor league meeting beginning at Jacksonville Fla. Dec. 3. Graham reported that Tribe Mentor Roger Peckinpaugh favors the deal.

CASE SETTLED

ASHLAND—Suit of Harvey N. Johnson, Jeromesville, R. D. 2, against Frank Tucker of Mogodore was settled and dismissed in Ashland common pleas court Monday afternoon after jurors had heard part of the testimony in the suit.

Johnson sought damages of $5,000 as the result of an automobile collision at the intersection of township road 56 and state route 89 and Montgomery township on July 21, 1940. Tucker, in a cross petition, asked damages of $3,400.

Scholastic Grid Year Nears End

34 Teams Finish Season With Undefeated Record.

By JAMES EMERSON

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Except for two post season charity scraps, Ohio schoolboy football fans can wrap up the 1941 season and argue about the comparative merits of the state's 34 undefeated teams and the 4,000 candidates for all-Ohio honors.

One of the remaining 17 undefeated and untied games will be jolted from the "perfect" list Saturday when Martins Ferry and Toledo Libbey clash in a charity game at Toledo.

Ferry has won 10 games in a row over tough opposition in the first year of Gomer Jones, former assistant to Francis Schmidt at Ohio State, as Ferry coach. Libbey has rolled over eight opponents without a tie or setback. The two teams have not met a common foe so speculation is strictly of the "take your choice" variety.

Cleveland Lincoln, unbeaten and untied in nine starts, meets Cleveland Collinwood, who has lost only to unbeaten Lakewood, in the Plain Dealer charity game at Cleveland Saturday.

Napoleon was the only one of the unbeaten circle to stumble last week, losing its last game to Bryan, 13 to 6. Leetonia, only club in the state besides Martins Ferry to win 10 starts, ran into a scoreless tie against Salem in its 11th contest.

This left 17 teams unbeaten and untied and 17 others unbeaten but with one or more ties.

Massillon's juggernaut crushed Canton McKinley, 32 to 0, and ended the season with nine victories and one tie (by Mansfield, 6 to 6). The Tigers now have a record of 43 games without defeat, 33 under Paul Brown and 10 under Bud Houghton who filled Brown's large shoes this fall.

Playing before a crowd of nearly 24,000, Massillon administered the most decisive defeat in the 46 games of its traditional series with McKinley. After relying on a potent ground attack in its first nine games, the Tigers switched to passes against McKinley.

Held scoreless in the first half, Martins Ferry rallied to trounce a stubborn Alliance team, 27 to 0. Toledo Libbey rolled over Toledo Devilbiss, 13 to 0.

* * *

Squads which finished their schedules unbeaten by winning last week were Dayton Chaminade (over Miamisburg, 25 to 6); Lakewood (over Cleveland West Tech, 13 to 7); Mansfield (over Fremont, 26 to 0); Steubenville Catholic (over Boys' Town, 31 to 13).

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Now that baseball men are about ready to start to Jacksonville, Fla., for the minor league meetings and a little warm sunshine, more and better "type trades" are appearing in the papers....The scribes apparently have given up on selling Hank Greenberg for the Tigers and are trading Rudy York instead. Another report is that the Browns may peddle Chet Laabs to the Senators....Ted Williams tells friends he doesn't blame the sports writers for picking Joe DiMaggio as the most valuable player because "he did a man-sized job."...He adds he will make 'em pick Williams next season.

Steve Owens tells this on himself: In Sunday's Giants-Redskins game he noticed that Hank Soar was turning around frequently to look at the clock. Steve was afraid Sammy Baugh would pitch a pass right at Hank's head, so he yelled, "stop watching that clock and keep your eye on the ball." Soar didn't even look around to see who was hollering. He just called back, "don't bother me—I'm busy."

ODDS—AND SOME ENDS

Henry Armstrong is in town, looking fat and prosperous, to see Mike Jacobs about getting a few fights for his lightweight, Mike Delia of Los Angeles....Scouts from seven pro football clubs watched Schwenk of Washington U. pitch his passes in one game and four came back for a second look...Norment Quarles has retired from fighting and is practicing chiropody in his home town of Hendersonville, N. C.

GASOLINE WELL PUZZLES TOWN

There's No Shortage of Motor Fuel In Taylor, Miss., These Days.

(By United Press)

TAYLOR, Miss.—Threats of a gasoline shortage are not worrying citizens of this community since the old town well, after more than a century of loyal service as a thirst-quencher, suddenly began producing gasoline.

All efforts to explain the enigma have failed. What first was believed to be a boy's prank has developed into a mystery that is baffling.

First indications that all was not right with the old well came when an unmistakable odor of gasoline was noticeable. "Some boy playing a joke," residents said. But the gasoline odor kept getting stronger and stronger.

A negro was lowered into the well to investigate the trouble and the fumes were so strong that he was overcome. When he was revived, he reported gasoline was two feet deep in the eight-foot depth of water.

It was decided to experiment further by tossing a lighted match into the well. The result was an explosive roar and a tower of flame that surged high into the air. Buckets were lowered, and when brought to the surface, were filled with fire.

The well was dipped dry twice, yet when the water returned it contained approximately the same percentage of gasoline. Buckets of the fluid were ignited and burned for nearly 30 minutes. When the flame died, virtually one-third of the bucket's contents was gone.

Members of the state geological survey were summoned and after an investigation, they reported the fuel was seeping into the well from a near-by filling station. The filling station owner, however, said a three-weeks check on his tanks revealed no shortage—not a gallon.

Once more the well was emptied and a thorough check was made on the walls of the 50-foot shaft. The second report declared there was no seepage of "gasoline or anything else" through the walls.

"Whatever is in the well is either coming in from the top or bottom," Mayor J. E. Walker said.

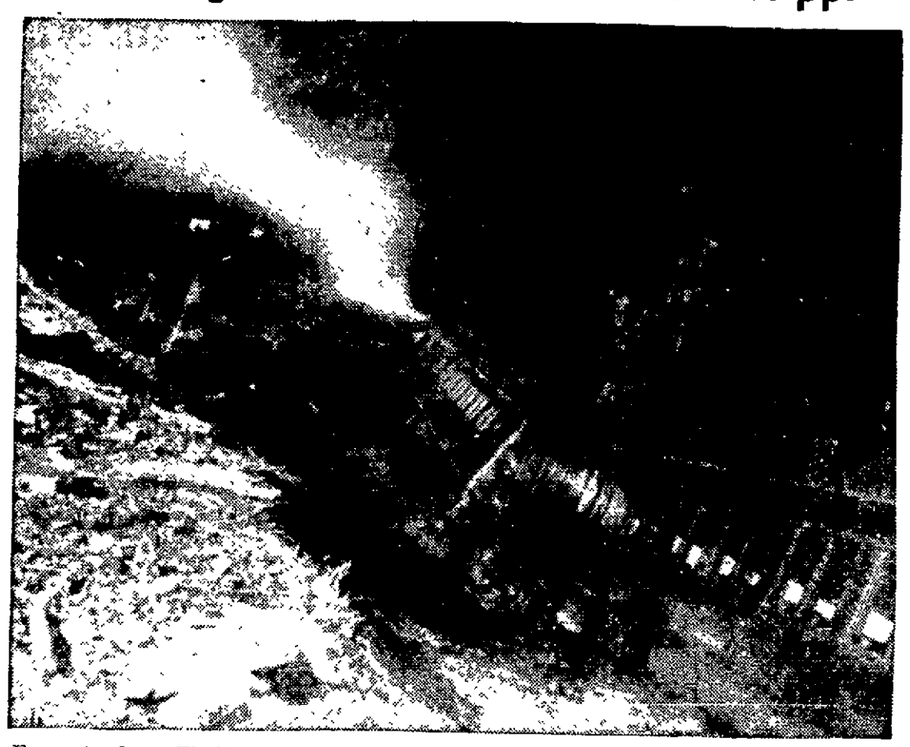
Passenger Train Wrecked In Mississippi



En route from Florida to Chicago, the Illinois Central railroad's fast passenger train, the "Seminole," left the rails near Corinth, Miss., resulting in the death of one passenger and injuries to 75 others. The engine and three baggage cars remained on the track but nine cars tumbled off, down an embankment and into a field. Railroad officials said the wreck apparently was caused by a broken rail.

PAM— Inhuman Treatment. By A. W. Brewerton

GOING OVER LATE F.B.I. REPORTS DAVID IS STARTLED
WHAT'S THIS? WHAT'S THIS? SOME OF THE GRAHAM RANSOM MONEY---
----HAS JUST TURNED UP IN THIS CITY! TRACED TO A NIGHT-CLUB! I'M GOING TO HAVE A CONFERENCE WITH THE CHIEF ABOUT THIS !
11-26
DAVID'S GREATEST DESIRE NOW IS TO CAPTURE THOSE TERRIBLE KIDNAPERS OF CAREY GRAHAM! HE BELIEVES THEY MUST HAVE TREATED CAREY BRUTALLY DURING THOSE WEEKS THEY HELD HIM CAPTIVE.
INHUMAN MUST HAVE BEEN THAT TREATMENT, TO HAVE NEARLY WRECKED THE BODY AND MIND OF THE POOR BOY
HE MUST HAVE SUFFERED TERRIBLY, FOR HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE AND HE LOST HIS MEMORY!
PREVERTON

STOCKS SHUFFLE AS NEWS FAILS TO PROD THEM

Federal Reserve Summary Shows Bank Loans Off Million.

NEW YORK— (AP) —The stock market found little in the spot news to touch off recovery today and leading issues shuffled over a slightly irregular route

Receiving early support Anaconda, Kennecott, U. S Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin and American Can.

Behind occasionally were U S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward.

In the search for market clues study was given the federal reserve summary disclosing commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Nov. 19 dropped $1,000,000. It was the third recession in this barometer since mid-October.

Holders of agricultural implement company shares noted government figures indicating farm income, including federal payments, from January to September exceeded the same months last year by $1,501,283,000.
